Nationalists Expelled

Communist China Seated

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. General Assembly voted Monday night to admit Communist China to the United Nations and expel Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist regime in a major defeat for the United States.

By a vote of 76 to 35, with 17 abstentions, the assembly adopted an Albanian resolution recognizing representatives of the People's Republic of China as "the only legitimate representatives of China" to the United Nations and expelling "forthwith the representatives of Chiang Kai-shek."

Earlier in the night the assembly voted 59 to 55, with 15 abstentions, to reject a U.S. resolution to make expulsion of the Nationalists an "important question" requiring a twothirds majority for adoption.

Among the U.S. allies who broke with Washington and voted against the U.S. resolution were Britain, Canada, Denmark, France, Norway and Pakistan. Belium and Italy abstained.

As it turned out, the Albanian resolution got more than a twothirds majority. Its adoption killed a rival U.S. resolution to provide "dual representation," for both the Communists and the Nationalists, a situation Peking said repeatedly it would not accept.

The Nationalists did not wait for the final vote. After defeat of the "important question" resolution, Foreign Minister Chow Shu-kai led his delegation out, ending the Chinese Republic's 26 years as a charter member of the United Nations.

"We have severed our connection with this building," said a member of the delegation from Taiwan.

Less than an hour after the Albanian resolution was adopted at 11:17 p.m. EDT, Secretary-General U Thant cabled the text to Peking as notification that the People's Republic was finally in after 22 years of trying.

There was no immediate response or comment from Peking.

From the rostrum, Vice Foreign Minister Reis Malile of Albania called the outcome "a victory for the peace-loving peoples and a great defeat for the United States of America." Sir Colin Crowe of Britain termed it a "return to reality."

U.S. Ambassador George Bush told reporters: "The U.N. has crossed a dangerous bridge, the bridge of expulsion ... I hope the U.N. will not relive this moment of infamy."

Bush said Nationalist China would survive outside the United Nations, but American public reaction would be bad and he did not know what Congress would do.

No March Permits To Serve Notice

WASHINGTON (AP) — Antiwar protesters, their first day of demonstrations virtually washed out by rain, plan to march on the White House today to serve President Nixon with an eviction notice.

Rennie Davis, a leader in the People's Coalition for Peace and Justice, sponsor of the protest, told about 400 youths Monday night permits for the march had been denied.

The crowd roared its approval when asked if they should march anyway and Davis declared: "We should figure on massive civil disobedience at the White House."

Meanwhile, in Killeen, Tex., a Veterans Day march Monday to protest the Indochina war ended when police arrested 112 servicemen, their wives and other supporters near Ft. Hood. Most of he demonstrators were charged with parading without a permit.

In Birmingham, Ala., 100 extra policemen watched as 10,000 persons marched before 250,000 spectators in what was billed as the nation's largest Veterans Day parade. Only minor incidents were reported.

Davis was one of several speakers who addressed the activists Monday after their planned rally at the Washington Monument and a candlelight march near the White House had been rained out.

The group also planned to receive a trans-Atlantic phone call from the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong negotiators at the Paris peace talks before the march to the White House.

But the chilling rain, which started about noon and continued into the night, sent the young demonstrators scattering to various churches and universities in Washington and it was almost 6 p.m. before they could be assembled again.

Davis told the crowd to meet at the Washington Monument about noon today for speeches, rock music and the trans-Atlantic phone call. He said the march on the White House would begin aboutthree hours later.

Also addressing the crowd Monday night was civil rights activist Hosea Williams, who said the issue of Vietnam must be kept alive.

Only a small crowd sat through rain-drenched Veterans Day ceremonies at Arlington National Cemetery to hear Vice President Spiro T. Agnew call for support of President Nixon's war policies. Agnew placed a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

U. S. Money To U. N. May Get Major Slash

WASHINGTON (AP) — A fight to slash America's money to the United Nations for expelling Taiwan was shaping in the Senate today with more advance votes lined up against it then for it.

Sen. James L. Buckley, ConR-N.Y., announced immediately after the 76-35 U.N. expulsion vote Monday night that he is drafting legislation for a "major reduction" of the U.S. financial contribution.

An effort to tack the fund cut onto the foreign aid bill before the Senate in the next two weeks is a possibility, his office said.

"This will do no more than reflect a major downgrading of the U. N.'s role in the eyes of most Americans," Buckley said in a statement issued in New York.

Buckley and 20 other senators issued a declaration last month that the United States should "reassess its financial and moral support of the United Nations" if Taiwan was ousted, but 32 senators issued a letter Monday denouncing a fund cut.

Sen. Peter H. Dominick, RColo., charging America was handed the defeat after paying 35 per cent of the United Nations' support, joined Buckley's drive.

Senate and House Republican leaders Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania and Gerald R. Ford of Michigan issued a statement over the weekend saying the United Nations could not expect the degree of its present U.S. support if it expelled Taiwan.

But the 32 senators repudiating Buckley's cut included Republican National Chairman Robert Dole of Kansas and all four major potential Democratic presidential contenders—Sens. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, George S. McGovern of South Dakota and Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota.

Three-fourths of the House, 336 members, joined 67 senators in urging that Taiwan be kept in the United Nations but only 33 House members joined the 21 senators in suggesting U.S. money be cut if Chiang Kai-shek's government was expelled.

Check Writer Gets Term

One-year probation on a charge of writing insufficient funds checks against Billie Wilkening of Matthews was revoked this morning by magistrate Jerry Briggs.

A warrant was issued for Wilkening's arrest when Briggs learned the man was accused of writing other bad checks.

He was sentenced to three months in the county jail in April but the jail time was stayed and he was placed on probation.

He was ordered to the county jail in Benton.

Byron Klingel of 235 Watson waived his preliminary hearing on a charge of burglary and stealing and was bound over to circuit court for a Nov. 26 appearance. Klingel and Calvin Adams, also of Sikeston, are charged with a July 13 theft of money from the Eagle Shell Service Station. Following their arrest, the two admitted to nine other area thefts involving them and other Sikeston youths.

A. C. James of Miner was fined $5 for having no cover on the bed of his truck and $25 for permitting an unauthorized operator to drive his truck. Dickie Turner of Blodgett, named with James in the traffic violation was fined $10 for having no chauffuer's license.

A warrant was issued for the arrest of Roy Newberry of Charleston when he failed to appear to face a charge of having no operator's license.

Other cases heard:

James Maddox, Sikeston, failure to exercise care, $15; Charles Manning, East St. Louis, $50, misuse of operator's license; Samuel Vines, 811 Gulf, expired behicle license, $15.

Tony Clark, 201 Edwards, unlicensed operator, $15; Charles Drake, Canalou, defective brakes, $15; and Terry Woods, Bertrand, speeding $20.

A charge of possession of intoxicating beverages levied against Joe Manard James Jr., was taken under advisement by Judge Briggs.

Wants Decent Life

JACKSON, Mo. (AP) -- Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth said Monday night "wars can no longer be a rallying point for out country. Patriotism and militarism cannot be confused with each other."

The only kind of a world war today would be a nuclear war, he said, and "such a prospect is unthinkable. In a nuclear war there can be no winner, there can be only destruction of hundreds of millions of lives and all civilization as we know it."

At the same time, he said in a speech prepared for an American Legion Veterans Day program, "we have seen in Vietnam that brush-fire wars do not inspire the kind of national unity and pride that was the case through 1945."

Today's task, he said, "is to develop a spirit of national unity and purpose which does not entail the necessity of war. We must consciously think of ourselves as one people, dedicated not to destroying a common foe, but to building a decent life for all Americans"'

Building a united country, he said, can be accomplished without creating foreign enemies and must be accomplished in an atmosphere of peace.

Snipers Battle Troops

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — British troops battled snipers across the Irish border today and in the backstreets of Belfast. Two deaths elsewhere brought Northern Ireland's twoyear toll to 135.

One of the dead was found gagged and bound and shot through the head, apparently the victim of an "execution" squad. The other died of bullet wounds received in a street gunbattle Saturday.

Two soldiers were wounded, one seriously, in a shootout between troops and snipers in Belfast's Lower Falls district.

Army headquarters said snipers opened fire on British soldiers blowing up a road into the Irish republic to the south. The troops returned fire across the frontier in a 45-minute skirmish.

None of the soldiers was hit. The army is blowing up frontier roads to cut down arms smuggling into the north.

The gunfight followed a night of street battles and shooting in the north, and a riot in the Longkesh internment camp where prisoners seized four hostages and battled British troops firing nausea gas. The hostages were freed unharmed. About 260 suspected guerrillas are being held without trial in the camp.

In Belfast, police found the gagged and blindfolded body of a young man shot through the head in an alleyway. Detectives said he was evidently killed by the Irish Republican Army.

Hi-Jacked Plane Grounded

MIAMI, Fla, (AP) — A hijacked Boeing 747 jumbo jet sat on the ground at Havana's Jose Marti Airport today and federal authorities said it probably would not be allowed to leave until Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin touched down in the Cuban capital.

"This is just my opinion," said a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration, "but I bet Castro would like to have a 747 on the runway when Kosygin gets there."

The Soviet premier was scheduled to arrive for a state visit today.

The American Airlines plane was hijacked Monday night after leaving New York en route to San Juan, Puerto Rico. Officials said 236 persons were aboard the plane, including three sky marshals and an offduty FBI agent when a lone gunman diverted it to Cuba.

"Since then, we've heard nothing,' said the FAA spokesman. "They're really closedmouth this time."

American said it learned of the hijack from a prearranged "special signal" abroad the plane, designed to alert ground personnel that a hijack was in progress.

"A male has a gun on a stewardess in the first class lounge and indicates he wants to go to Havana," the pilot later radioed Kennedy, according to an FAA spokesman in Washington.

What actions, if any, were taken by the sky marshals or the FBI agent were not know, the spokesman said.

American's flight 96 started in Dallas, boarded most of its passengers in New York and touched down at Jose Marti at 9:58 p.m.

Woman Hurt

PARMA-- A Malden woman sustained chest injuries in a two-car collision one half mile west of Parma on route D early Tuesday at 7:23 a.m.

A 1965 Ford traveling east, driven by Brenda Sue Miller, 18, of Malden, struck a 1959 Chevrolet going south, driven by Leo Lane, 61, of Parma, the highway patrol said, when the Chevrolet pulled in front of the Miller car.

The Malden woman was taken to Dexter Memorial hospital.

Road Bids Open

Bids were opened Friday for widening and resurfacing of highway 25 from Dexter to White Oak in Stoddard County and Dunklin county.

William H. Shaw, district highway engineer, said the work includes all the route from Dexter to White Oak except that portion through Bernie, Malden, and Clarkton.

He said the apparent low bidders were Missouri Petroleum Company of Overland and Tri-City Asphalt Company of Alton, Ill. Shaw said the amount of the bids would not be released until the highway commision acts.

"The highway commission will consider the bids and either award the contracts or reject the bids sometime next month," Shaw said. He added that if the bids are found satisfactory, work will begin on the project next spring.

PRINCE OF CRIMINALS

There is a remarkable silence in the American media about Meyer Lansky. This man is characterized as the Chairman of the Board of organized crime in the United States.

For those who are unaware of Lansky's almost limitless power, Hank Messick's book, Lansky, published by Putnam, will be a shocker. This book offers a careful profile of America's most powerful criminal and reveals that crime and politics are closely linked.

The Wall Street Journal described Lansky as an "Underworld Genius," in an article by staff reporter Nicholas Gage, entitled "How One Gang Leader Thrives While Others Fall by the Wayside" (Nov. 19, 1969). As the most powerful leader of organized crime in the U. S., Lansky has enjoyed a mysterious immunity from criticism by the press. This in itself gives evidence of his power.

With grudging admiration, an F.B.I. agent says, "If Meyer Lansky had gone into legitimate business instead of into the mob back in the 1920s, he'd be the chairman of the board of General Motors today." It was Lansky who persuaded the crime syndicate to de-emphasize such highrisk and high-publicity ventures as narcotics, prostitution and murder-by-contract and to plunge into the safer, more profitable fields of banking, insurance, real estate and gambling, both legal and illegal.

Lansky pioneered in developing the intricate network of fronts that allows the syndicate to operate numerous enterprises without revealing a visible connection to them. Mob money, for example, is sent to numbered bank accounts in Switzerland via courier. Middlemen in Europe then draw out some of the money and send it to agents, usually lawyers or brokers, in the U.S., sometimes with specific instructions on how to invest it in any manner the agent sees fit.

The middleman in Europe knows who he is working for. The agent who deals with the middleman usually does not. FBI agents estimate Lansky's personal fortune in numbered accounts abroad may exceed $300 million. Crime pays for Lansky.

Meyer Lansky's success makes a mockery of American justice. National outrage is the appropriate response to this criminal. But this response will not take place until the media dare to unmask him. It is frightening to imagine the reasons why the media has not done so.

ENGLISH TIME

Winter in England is a dark time. In December the sun rises after 9 a.m. and sets before 5 p.m. in London. For the past three years Britain has been experimenting with setting the clock forward an hour all year round, not just in the summer. But after a lengthy survey, the Commons voted last year by a majority of 285 votes to put the clocks back on Sunday, Oct. 31.

Until the middle of the 19th Century, time was calculated locally and there was no standard time. In 1859 a man was tried for a crime in Dorchester, England, and when he arrived in court he found that he had been sentenced in absentia because the court used one local time and he used another. Internationally the situation was even more confused. In 1884 a conference was held in Washington which adopted the Greenwich Meridian in England as longitude 0 degrees, the reference point for standard time throughout the world.

It didn't take long for people to start fiddling with the clocks again. During World War I Walter Rathenau, who was in charge of raw materials for the German war effort, discovered that the productivity of the workers could be increased by moving the clock forward an hour during the summer months. Germany introduced daylight saving time in 1916 and most other countries followed. During World War II all clocks in the United States were advanced one hour for the period from Feb. 9, 1942, to Sept. 30, 1945. And in 1966 Congress passed a bill which established daylight saving time in the summer throughout the nation.

The time in most of Europe is always one hour ahead of Greenwich Mean Time, with no change in the summer. Russia, for example, adopted this system in 1930. Britain tried to adapt to the European system in 1968, to pave the way for entrance into the Common Market. But public opinion was against it. As James Callaghan, the former Home Secretary, said: "The plain truth is that we just do not have enough hours of daylight to go around, however you play with them." So next month Britain will once more be the home of Greenwich Mean Time.

A VOICE FOR 61 MILLION

This nation is poised on the threshold of Phase II of the Nixon Administration's economic stabilization program.

And what Phase II ushers in may determine the direction of the nation's economy for generations to come.

Yet, shockingly, recent press accounts indicate that 61,000,000 members of the nation's labor force will not be represented on the tripartite Pay Board (President Nixon is appointing its members now) during the initial, crucial months of Phase II.

Who are the 61,000,000? The overwhelming majority (80%) of the American work force that is not affiliated with organized labor.

This 80% will be sealed off from representation on the tripartite Pay Board in favor of the five professional unionists who will be designated "labor" representatives.

No one argues that union officials should not be on that Board as spokesmen for that distinct minority of American workers they represent. But what of the 61,000,000?

There's no conceivable way the union hierarchy can presume to speak for them. In fact, the union hierarchy can't even presume to speak for its own membership — nearly half of whom are "forced followers" of the union bosses because in non-Right to Work states they must either fork over dues to the union or be fired under compulsory union shop contracts.

A recent poll by the Opinion Research Corp. clearly underscores why representatives of the 61,000,000 are needed. It showed that two of three members of union families rate their union leaders' performance negatively, both in advancing the interest of union members and in meeting their public responsibilities.

Now these same officials will be appointed as spokesmen for "labor" to the Pay Board. And they can be expected to use that position to further fasten the coils of compulsory unionism around the nation's working men and women — as they did during World War II when compulsory unionism grew nearly four-fold under similar circumstances!

These self-seeking union representatives should not be permitted to repeat that shoddy performance.

For "labor" is not one — or a few — powerful union officials. Nor is "labor" any one group of unions. Nor is "labor" the local AFL-CIO official. "Labor" is all Americans gainfully employed — the total working force of the nation.

Let union officials represent the 19,000,000 members — conscripted and otherwise — they collect dues from; but let the "labor" portion of the tripartite Pay Board reflect the voice of the 61,000,000 as well.

The interests of justice and equity for American workers demands it.

ONE MAN, ONE VOTE HOUSE

The commissioners of the Missouri Supreme Court have drawn up something close to a model plan for one man, one vote House districts, and the inevitable result will be lamentations from some House members. We shed no tears for them.

One of the reasons the court commissioners had to undertake this unsought task was that the bipartisan redistricting commission was under constant pressure from legislators who wanted to salvage their present districts. Finally, the 10 Republicans rejected a highly tentative plan offered by the 10 Democrats on the commission—the Republicans congratulating one another afterward as if they had won a major political victory.

Perhaps they did, but no one can be sure until all the boundaries of all the 163 new House districts are evaluated. The court commissioners were not interested in legislative maneuvering and political objectives. Their goal was to draw districts as nearly equal in population as was possible, and also as compact as practicable. They worked in comparative secrecy.

In terms of the one man, one vote principle the results were remarkable. No district varies by more than 1.3 per cent from the average or ideal figure for equal population, and 81 districts are slightly above the ideal, while 81 are slightly below it. By putting equal representation first, the commissioners were willing to let the politcal chips fall where they would, and those who sought partisan advantage are left to pick them up.

If it is said that the 1971 redistricting represents a partial failure of the bipartisan commission system, the answer is that while the commission failed, for once, the system provides for an automatic solution at the court level. In the end, it did work.

The contrast is plain with the faulty process of letting legislators themselves arrange redistricting. The Legislature made such a mess of congressional apportionment that the plan has had to be forced to court by a citizen's suit. Congressional districts ought to be established in the future as House and Senate districts are. —Post-Dispatch.

LOOK MAGAZINE, one of the biggest circulation weeklies in the nation, will cease publication on October 19. Two reasons were given, first excessive postage, and secondly, lack of advertising revenue. When as good a magazine as Look with circulation far into the millions, can't keep going, it strikes a bit of fear into other media. Our government should be trying to do something about the mail situation, for not only is the price higher than ever in history, but also slower. A letter from Ed Rutter in New Jersey, to the Democrat editor, is typical of what we constantly hear. "We always get our paper on Tuesday. We did not receive the two papers previous to Sept. 8th." Congressman Bill Hungate recently made a speech before the Post Office Committee in which he said he did not get the papers from his home district until they were two and three weeks late.—SHelbina Democrat.

A WASTED EFFORT

Several months ago, a large West Coast brewery launched a cleanup project of near monumental proportions. It organized litter removal squads and set them to work picking up all the trash along one of the scenic highways stretching from Portland, Oregon, to the Pacific Coast, some 70 or 80 miles away. Arrangements were made for fleets of trucks to haul off the garbage as it was gathered from the road and adjacent right-of-way. Tons and tons of unsightly trash were removed, and one of the state's scenic highways was restored to its original beauty. But what happened? Drive along this highway today,and you will find the same old dreary isle of trash and garbage—cartons of pop and beer cans, paper plates, half-eaten sandwiches and all the refuse of a slovenly people.

When we talk about improving the environment, one cannot help wondering just what we mean. To what avail is clean air or water to people who have no sense of personal responsibility toward holding up their end of the job of keeping our earth a fit place on which to live. Cleaning up a highway was a good publicity stunt for a beer company. But, it appears to have been a wasted effort in a country whose people seem to want to delegate all responsibility for preserving the environment to government, industry and the other fellow.

NO COMPROMISE WITH COMMUNISM

Recently a group of Senators and Congressmen issued a statement calling for keeping Free China in the United Nations. The statement carefully avoided the issue of whether Red China should be admitted to the U. N. along with Taiwan.

But at a press conference called to discuss the statement, spokesmen for the signers left the impression that they might be willing to see Peking in the U. N. so long as Free China were not expelled. At this, two Congressmen, John Schmitz of California and John Rarick of Louisiana, walked out of the press conference, declaring that they could not support any compromise on this issue and that they absolutely opposed the admission of Communist China to the U.N.

Although the Congressmen who supported the position taken at the press conference did so with the best of intentions, they must realize that there can be no compromise with Communism. If Red China is admitted to the U.N. on an equal basis with Free China, it would be tantamount to admitting that a government which, in the words of Congressman Schmitz," is keeping 800 million people in bondage" is of equal status with the legitimate Chinese government. Free China could then be more easily expelled later.

A "two Chinas" policy is a retreat from a principled anti-Communitst stand. As such, it would be a victory for the Communists, who are often willing to compromise so long as the result leaves them better off than before. Two constructive Congressmen, one a Republican and the other a Democrat, have taken the lead in refusing to comprise with Communism. Their colleagues in Congress should follow their example. HLH

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — If you think all it takes to marry off a daughter is money, you're wrong.

You also need a groom, and he's got to be at the wedding—which is where I ran into problems.

To get the whole happy expensive mess into proper focus we turn back to last year after my miss and her fella, senior classmates at Temple University, got engaged and set the date.

He had just joined the Army Reserves and was awaiting callup for five months of active duty, hoping to time it to make the wedding, finish some courses for a B.A. degree and start law school.

Weeks passed, then months, but no Army orders.

Time was critical. Too late an Army reporting date would mean my prospective son-inlaw would miss classes and the wedding date.

"You know people," my worried wife said. "Call the Army, call your senator, call anybody."

I already had, zeroing in on the Defense Department and its military red tape through Pennsylvania's two U.S. senators, Hugh Scott and Richard Schweiker. After all, the young man wasn't trying to get out of the Army, he was trying to get in and having no luck.

My wife was getting frantic, and so was my daughter. The caterer, the florist, the photographer and the orchestra leader also might have been concerned if they knew the dilemma and how it might cut them out of a big payoff in a cancellation or elopement.

About this time a year ago, President Nixon was on the election trail and planning a quick Pennsylvania stopover at Lancaster to plug a candidate for governor who never made it. I took the missus along on the assignment hoping to get her mind off a wedding still

Good thinking? Well . . . not exactly the way it was orginally figured. Women just won't listen.

When the President, after his speech, moved past newsmen on the way to the White House helicopter, my wife stuck out a hand to say hello, and Nixon grabbed it. She wouldn't let go.

"Mr. President, can you help a young man get called to active duty in the Army?" she asked—a determined mother, cool, calm and collected.

That demolished me, usually cool, calm and collected.

"Who is this young man?" Nixon asked.

"The man my daughter is going to marry," which intrigued the President even more and increased my embarrassment as he pursued the topic.

My wife explained the Army delay and finalized her concern with a touch of diplomacy: "You know how it is with daughters."

Nodding (no kidding) the President suggested she write to his military aide, which she did. And I kept prodding my senators, who kept prodding the Pentagon, and the orders finally came—on time. And nobody took any credit because I'm certain the Army did it all by itself.

So now you think everyone lived happily ever after? Not quite.

First, the Army lost the young man's travel orders. Then he had to sweat out a two-week leave scheduled in the middle of his training, which he didn't want, and finally was able to stay on duty.

Finally he finished training and came home a week before he had to answer wedding bells.

Okay? Not okay. My daughter cried because the Army cut her guy's hair too short.

"Sorry," I said, "the President can't do a thing

Washington-Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON: — President Nixon has decided to shun the traditional political barnstorming next year and to campaign for re-election by actively attending to the nation's affairs.

He will make appearances around the country and speak to the nation on the television networks. But he intends to soft-pedal the political rhetoric, maintain the dignity of his office and go about his presidential duties.

Those who know Richard Nixon suspect he may have difficulty restraining himself when the campaign heats up. But it is now his intention to avoid the rock 'em sock 'em politics of past Nixon campaigns.

Of course, he will overlook no opportunity to drive home the idea that he is a peace-and-prosperity President. But he hopes to dramatize this more by presidential activity than political campaigning.

Before the 1972 election, he expects to end the American combat role in Vietnam, to improve relations with both Peking and Moscow and to get the economy booming again.

All the while, Nixon will keep the voters constantly aware of the peace-and-prosperity theme by making dramatic new moves and announcements. If he goes before the cameras too often, he fears, the public might get tired of his face.

The President was barnstorming in California on the eve of the 1970 election. He left the voters with the impression of a shrill, partisan President. This is a mistake he doesn't intend to repeat in 1972. The only campaign trail he will take next year will be the high road.

Footnote: The President will vote in California. Intimates say he is eager to win the state, not only because it has the most electors but because he seeks vindication over being rejected for governor in 1962. These are the reasons he is bringing the Republican convention to California. But heavy unemployment in the aerospace industry, which has caused recession in some sections of the state, could give him trouble.

UN AND DRUGS

A still-secret congressional report lays much of the blame for the burgeoning international narcotics trade squarely in the lap of the United Nations.

The report, prepared for the House Foreign Affairs Committee, is based upon an 11-nation narcotics investigation conducted last spring by Rep. Seymour Halpern, R-N.Y. It appears to be one of the most comprehensive documents ever put together about the international narcotics crisis.

"If the United States and the other victim countries are ever to be successful in elininating the scourge of heroin addiction within their own shores," Halpern writes in the report, "they must move beyond unilateral and bilateral controls; there is no way that just one or two countries on their own can handle the problem."

The obvious solution would be for the United Nations to step in and coordinate a worldwide effort to squelch the illegal dope trade. The basic bureaucratic structures, rules and regulations already exist. It is just a matter of putting some teeth in them.

The UN, however, has reneged on its responsibilities. Says Halpern: "World organizations, and the United Nations in particular, have failed in their responsibilities to meet the ever mounting crisis in international narcotics trade."

The UN's International Narcotics Control Board "should be taking the lead in calling for new or amended treaty agreements," Halpern continues, "but it has not done so. It simply is not keeping pace with developments on the international drug scene, and has been prone to maintain a 'live and let live' policy, rather than offend any member nation. . .

"The painful but obvious conclusion we can draw..." says Halpern, "is that United Nations effectiveness in narcotic traffic and control is virtually negligible."

The greatest problem the UN faces, Halpern reports, "is the reluctance of member nations to yield their jurisdiction in legislative and administrative fields to international bodies...."

LONG WAIT

Way back on June 30, 1969, Sgt. James V. King of McClellan Air Force Base, Calif., submitted a formal suggestion that airmen working around radiation hazards such as radar and other microwave equipment be given special cautionary indoctrination.

King pointed to studies showing that overexposure causes "permanent and incurable" damage such as cataracts. The Air Force notified King: "you will be informed when action is taken."

For more than two years, King waited. "Finally, on Sept. 24, 1971, the Air Force told him his idea had been tentatively approved, adding: "You will be kept informed of the progress made."

Meanwhile, as the Air Force dawdles, hundreds of airmen are being exposed to

Inside Labor

INSIDE LABOR: Smashing the Mafia: Special Federal anti-racketeering Labor task force uncovering Mob's control of Pension millions

NEW YORK-- One witty Federal agent calls the Justice Department's anti-racketeering headquarters here the "Nutcracker suite" The strike force, biggest in the nation, has the underworld in a pincer and is squeezing the Mafia's own investment and labor specialists so hard that the "combine" is screaming to its political allies for protection.

On one side the pressure is from Operation Financier, code name of Strike Force 18 centered in Washington but with deep interest in the banking routes taken by the underworld's money wizard Meyer Lansky to the anonymous cash pools in Switzerland. Israeli authorities have dispatched solemn word that Lansky will be deported from Tel Aviv--and the special agents here await him with grim pleasure. He may not talk. But the probers will get their answers from the questions he refuses to answer.

The rest will come from Operation Financier strike force chief Bob Campbell who is "grand jurying" in Las Vegas.

Meanwhile, needled by the other side of the pincer are the Mafia's infiltrators of small but powerful unions such as some of those with ties to Johnny Dio's crime combine at Kennedy Airport.

The big, deeply coordinated strike force here headed by Dan Hollman, however, seeks far more than exposure or the indictment of men linked to the notorious air freight racket. Big as it is, it still doesn't match what potentially could affect billions of dollars in investments--the hundreds of pension funds administered by glue-fingered officials of dummy unions, strategically placed locals of giant labor affilitates and garden-type muscle outfits.

The peel-off from these pension funds could retire many a burgeoning nation's national debt. There are fake investments. There are high-priced lawyers, relatives or friends. There are special counsellors, actuaries, friendly real estate advisers, weird Florida investments and, of course, finders fees for those who need not look further than their own circle for multi-million dollar loans.

Just in passing, there is Allen Dorfman, intimate of Jimmy Hoffa. He is the son of Hoffa's late buddy, Paul Dorfman, who, it might intrigue you, seized the Chicago Waste Handlers Union from one Jack Ruby long, long ago. Dim history has it that this seizure sent Ruby running for Dallas and grim immortality. Dorfman was tough and helped his son build a complex of insurance companies. Now Allen is scheduled to stand trial here on Nov. 15 before Judge Gurfein.

He is charged with receiving a $55,000 kickback on a loan application made to the Teamsters Central States pension fund office by a North Carolina textile comapny.

The trial will tell its own story. What has not yet been reported is the creation of the special organized crime labor unit which Hollman has put into action here in what is called the Southern District (reaching into upper New York state) and in the Eastern District over the river in Brooklyn and points east.

Watch this task force. It is the pattern for action in virtually every one of the 17 cities containing smaller strike forces.

It wasn't always so. Until recently this area-- capital of the powerful Mafia global network--had but one labor agent.

Hollman looked at his task force--on which, theoretically sit FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover and Attorney General John Mitchell. But he had only one labor racket expert. Just one to handle hundreds of locals with more power than the big labor movement itself. So Hollman went down to see "the A.G." And the New York crime fighter made some real brownie points: The mob's money and power grabs are massive here. From it flow command decisions to the Mafia everywhere.

In a few months the labor specialists began pouring in. Today Hollman has 20 labor experts. At least 13 of them operate across New York. The other seven cover Brooklyn and Long Island where more Mafia chiefs reside than on Mediterranean islands.

There is Joe Colombo, still in the coma into which an executioner's bullet sent him last June 28. Much of a Mafia chief now he isn't, which is exactly what the Mafia's nine-man National Commission wanted. That was the gang which could shoot straight, Jimmy.

Brooklyn too, is what Carlo Gambino, boss of all bosses, calls home. And Long Island is where Carmine Tramanti, acting boss of the Old Luchese crowd lives. And they do have influence in unions which dominate hundreds of millions of dollars worth of commerce and industry and construction.

Mistake it not. Those crime syndicates and their chiefs are not provincials. They reach right across the country into Canada, through Buffalo where the mob is not getting nearly the investigative attention it should get in view of the heavy mob concentration there, and on out to the west.

Just the other day, Mitchell reported that more than 1,400 organized crime and gambling figures were convicted in the past three fiscal years. And that 2,100 more are being prosecuted. And 123 "high echelon" mob figures have been convicted in his period. Well, many of them are from this capital of Mafia finance, organized crime financial wizards and labor rackets.

That nutcracker suite gives off a mighty fine tune. A little public applause won't hurt the performers.

Kissinger Returns To U.S.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger returned to the United States today after a trip to Peking.

He and his party flew on to Washington, after their Boeing 707 was refuled, to report to President Nixon on arrangements made for the forthcoming presidential visit to mainland China.

A spokesman for Kissinger's group said the flight from Shanghai to Anchorage was the first such flight from mainland China to the United States since before World War II.

The Yugoslav news agency Tanjug had reported Kissinger's departure from the Chinese capital.

The Tanjug correspondent in Peking said that the extension of Kissinger's stay there for two extra days aroused much speculation and was also linked by observers to the vote on Chinese representation in the United Nations.

The report said there were no comments in Peking on the outcome of the vote.

REMEMBER THE U-2? The slim-winged, high-flying reconnaissance plane that yielded priceless intelligence on Soviet military and industrial activities before figuring in the international incident that saw a 1960 Big Four summit shot down along with one of the planes is still flying. Although still employed in intelligence gathering to some extent, emphasis today is on science. The U-2 in foreground at Wallops Island, Va., is participating in testing for the Earth Resources Technology Satellite scheduled for launch in 1972. The plane makes passes over test sites at 65,000 feet every 18 days, making photographs to simulate the satellite's planned cycle.

Senate War Critics Renew Drive To Force Withdrawal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate's war critics are launching the next step in their drive to force U.S. withdrawal from Indochina amid indications the issue could become the single biggest stumbling block to adjournment of Congress by Dec. 1.

The battle this time revolves around an amendment to the $3.2 billion foreign aid authorization bill that calls for withdrawal of U.S. troops in six months. It also bars spending on U.S. military activity in Indochina except for withdrawal and protecting withdrawing forces from "imminent danger."

Debate on the bill starts today.

This amendment, unlike others, has been included in the aid bill by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Therefore, the burden will be on President Nixon's backers to remove or delete it.

The antiwar forces on the Foreign Relations panel have included a number of other amendments, including a $250 million ceiling on U.S. activities in Cambodia similar to the $350 million limit on American activities in Laos voted in the military procurement bill last month.

Committee members say they are confident the Senate will uphold the dual antiwar amendment. Approval of the fund cutoff provision by Sens. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., and Frank Church, D-Idaho, would make it the first time the Senate has ever cut off money for the war.

Twice in recent months the Senate has voted to set a deadline on U.S. operations in Indochina, calling 61 to 38 last June for a nine-month deadline and 57 to 38 last month for a six-month deadline.

The first rider was watered down by Senate-House conferees on the draft extension bill, and the second one appears likely to suffer the same fate when conferees return to work on the $21.3 billion military procurement bill.

But the margin of defeat in the House—215 to 193 the last time—has been steadily narrowing, and the Senate's war critics hope that one of these times, possibly on the foreign aid measure, the House will finally go along.

Another factor in debate over the bill may be President Nixon's troop withdrawal announcement Nov. 15. Pentagon sources have said he might schedule a total withdrawal by July, but the White House has not indicated the magnitude of the announcement.

Besides the foreign aid authorization, and the later appropriations bill, the Senate will have to pass a $70 billion-plus defense appropriations bill before it can conclude the session.

Congressional leaders are determined to end the present session by Dec. 1, and all indications are that resolution of the war issue may determine how successful they are.

Wounded Fugitive Stays In Hiding

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A wounded gunman whom police say has taken four hostages since Thursday afternoon's robbery of a St. Louis savings and loan office stayed out of sight Monday.

Police said they still are working on the belief the gunman is holding a St. Louis County man as his fourth hostage.

John L. Dorrell III, of Florissant, Mo., has been missing since Saturday morning. His wife told authorities Dorrell called her Sunday afternoon and said he was being held by the man sought by police and the FBI.

Federal complaints charging armed robbery and kidanping have bee issued against James Leroy Cochran, 36, of St. Louis.

Police continued to scour the metropolitan area for Dorrell's car, a red, 1970 Plymouth with a luggage rack on top.

Three other hostages taken by Cochran were released unharmed. One, a teacher at Northwest High School, was held briefly Thursday afternoon as Cochran escaped from police shortly after the robbery. The second hostage was held with 13 others at his house near the high school, forced to drive Cochran to the Granite City, Ill., area Thursday night, then released. The third, a Boonville, Mo., woman, was driven by Cochran from her home to Kansas City and back to St. Louis Friday.

Dorrell's wife said her husband told her not to worry when he called her Sunday. "I was very happy to know that he was at least alive," she said.

Police said Cochran was wounded in the arm Thursday during an exchange of gunfire with them after the robbery.

Authorities said a car belonging to Cochran's acquaintance Marilyn Oliver, 21, was used in the robbery. Police found the woman's car—but she has not been seen since a weekago.

Two men tookpart in the Thursday holdup of the Cass Federal Savings & Loan Association. One of the men was wounded and arrested shortly after the holdup. Police recovered about $10,000 taken by the armed pair.

Bond Calls For Better Collections

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "I am firmly conviced that better collection procedures could increase the amount of tax dollars collected by the state," State Auditor Christopher "Kit" Bond said today.

He made the assertion in a speech prepared for a meeting of the St. Louis Electrical Board of Trade.

"One example," he said, "is the intangible tax unit of the Department of Revenue." There procedural changes were made that increased collections by 59 per cent.

"I personally doubt that such a major increase could be achieved in other areas," Bond said, "but in our audit of the sales tax unit we did find many activities on which the Department of Revenue could and should be doing a better job in collecting delinquent taxes. They also need to adopt procedures to insure that taxpayers owing a tax do pay it.

"If the procedures we recommended were put into effect, Missouri could collect millions of dollars more in sales taxes under existing laws."

He said he found too much delay in the collection of taxes and reporting it as revenue.

"Perhaps these transactions and the delays in reporting revenue have added to the confusion over Missouri's revenue picture...

"But they do not justify the assumption that Missouri has hundreds of millions of dollars hidden somewhere. To date, our examinations have not shown any cases where tax revenue paid to Missouri has been diverted to other uses."

State Refuses To Pay For Babysitting

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The state of Missouri won't pay for babysitting expenses.

John C. Vaughn, state comptroller, said today Mrs. Hugh Sprague submitted a request for repayment of $210 in babysitting expenses while she served on the State House Redistricting Commission last summer.

She said that was her biggest expense as a commissioner. She is the wife of Deputy State Auditor Hugh Sprague, formerly of St. Joseph.

Vaughn said it was a "first" in his experience as comptroller.

Ann Landers

Reader Discovers Poem About Ann

Dear Ann Landers: Ogden Nash died recently. He was one of my favorite poets. I ran across a poem he wrote about you. It was in Diner's Magazine. Please print it, Ann. Here it is:

But I Could Not Love Thee,Ann, So Much, Loved I Not Honore More

Some find the world in a grain of sand, I in the correspondence of Ann Landers.

I eavesdrop unabashed as she spoons out her acerb sauce with even hand on lachrymose geese and truculent ganders.

Her desk is positively formicating, which means swarming with moving beings, although I might well employ the other word that sounds like unto it.

Because her mail consists mostly of letters from those embittered ones who have discovered about illicit sex that often there are more headaches than fun to it.

A present-day Emma Lazarus, she cries Give me your huddled problems, the wretched refuse of your wrongs, unwrap for me your festering sores and stigmas;

Your poison is my meat, be it alcoholism, infidelity, frigidity, satyriasis, pre-marital pregnancy or borborygmus.

Yes, if anyone's Gordian love-knot requires a blade more cutting than Alexander's,

Let them call on Ann Landers.

No pussy-footer she, no purveyor of admonitions soothing or polite;

It's tell the bum to jump in the lake, tell the old bag to go fly a kite.

If Anne of Cleves would have written to Ann Landers

I bet Henry would have though twice before calling her the mare of Flanders.

From a human comedy as varied as Balzac's I choose for you one exerpt, the ultimate in wails of poignant woe,

The plaint of a teen-ager who doubted the affection of her boy friend because the only compliment he ever paid her was You sweat less than any fat girl I know.

Dear Friend: Thank you so much for sending on that delightful poem. I was deeply moved that Ogden Nash selected my column as a subject for his verse. I was not aware that he was a reader. When I read of his death in May I regretted that I never had the pleasure of meeting him. He was one of my favorites, too. The opening line of his poem is evidence that he understood what my column is all about and it pleases me immensely.

The Ogden Nash poem which I have repeated most often is this one:

When you hit the ketchup bottle
None comes out
And then a lottle and this one---
Breakfast foods grow odder and odder;

It's a wise child who knows his fodder.

Unsure of yourself on dates? What's right? What's wrong? Should you? Shouldn't you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Dating Do's and Don't," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Medical Treatment For Animals Is Specialized

ST. LOUIS — The United States is going to the dogs. And cats are getting their share, too!

Latest estimates indicate there are more than 25 million dogs in the U. S., with the cat population figured even higher. Equated to the human population, this means there's one dog or cat for every four Americans.

Coping with the rising health needs of this army of domestic pets is a corps of 27,000 highly trained veterinarians, many of whom now limit their practices to certain specialities, much as physicians do with human ailments.

It's not uncommon today to find veterinarians specializing in radiology, opthamology, and orthopedic surgery. Even the family physician doesn't practice dentistry, but this isn't too unusual for the typical veterinarian; he may use ultrasonic waves to remove tartar from his patients's teeth.

A lrelatively new career field in veterinary medicine is the "animal technician". Trained at the junior college level, as are dental hygienists, graduates are qualified to assist in surgery, give injections, and perform a variety of tests for the busy veterinarian.

Just as man is living longer today, due mostly to an improved diet and better medical care, so are his pets. Like most infants, pets receive early medical attention. Most veterinarians recommend that puppies and kittens, for instance, receive their first distemper shots at 12 weeks of age, followed by a second shot three weeks later. Rabies vaccinations are given at six months, with a booster shot annually. The determining factor for a pet's shots is the pet's age, not the time of year.

Among the sophisticated innovations in the treatment of family pets is a specialized payment/ scheduling program. Many veterinarians -- and pet shops, too -- are accepting multi-purpose charge cards like a bank card to make it easy for the attentive owner to obtain all the services his pet needs. The vet can then recommend that the owner use his itemized statement from Master Charge, for instance, to keep track of his pet's treatment, and to schedule future appointments. By accepting the credit card, the veterinarian also avoids awkward payment negotiations during an emergency.

Like the regular M.D.'s, veterinarians are coming aware that the science of medical treatment is a "full-service" operation.

Pumpkins Are Also Good For Feasting

It's time for cider and doughnuts, witches, goblins and, of course, jack-o-'lanterns. Bright orange pumpkins are a welcome symbol of harvest. Halloween and fun. Both children and adults enjoy trying their artistic hand at carving their own jack-o'-lantern.

But many people forget that they are also a delicious vegetable. This fall, try serving fresh pumpkins.

First, you should know how to choose the pumpkin. Here are some tips for buying pumpkins from the United States Department of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service. Although there are no USDA grade standards specifically for pumpkins, the same general buying criteria for winter squash apply to them.

They should be well matured, not broken or cracked; free from soft spots and excessive scarring; and they should be clean.

Pumpkins should have a rich, orange color.

Most varieties of pumpkins do not keep as well as hardshelled or winter squash. They may be kept for 2 to 3 months, but should be stored in a cool, dry place (50-55 degrees). All winter squash should be well matured, carefully handled and free from injury or decay when put in storage.

Pumpkins provide the makings of spicy pumpkin pie, bread, muffins, puddings and custards. Small pumpkins may be stuffed with meat, vegetables or seafood. A delicious soup can be made from pumpkin mixed with pureed carrots, sliced onions and leeks, chopped celery and parsley. It's also good mashed and seasoned with butter and cinnamon or baked and glazed with honey.

Pumpkin can be prepared in the same as other winter squashes, i.e., banana, Hubbard, acorn or Danish. To boil pumpkin, quarter it and remove the rind. Cook, covered in a small amount of lightly salted boiling water, 25-30 minutes or until tender. Since pumpkins are a watery vegetable, a large amount of cooking water is undesirable. When cooked, drain and mash. To use in recipes calling for canned pumpkin, place mashed pumpkin in a strainer and let drain about 30 minutes to remove excess liquid (or puree).

To bake pumpkin, simply wash and cut into servings size portions. Remove seeds and strings. Place in a pan, shell side up, and bake in a 325 degree oven for 1 hour or more until fork tender. During the last 15 minutes, turn flesh side up and brush with butter or a glaze, if desired. Or, scoop the pulp from the shell and mash.

To serve as a vegetable, allow about one-half pound of fresh pumpkin per person.

Women May Be Drafted If Equal Rights Becomes Law

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., doesn't care if women are bartenders or wrestlers, but he doesn't want them drafted or using men's restrooms.

And, if an amendment to the U.S. Constitution guaranteeing equal rights for women becomes law, Ervin says, those things and more will have to be sanctioned by courts that are merely living up to the Constitution.

Supporters of the amendment say Ervin is wrong.

Ervin, third-ranking Democrat on the Senate Judiciary Committee and architect of moves that killed the measure a year ago, is plotting new tactics for the 1972 renewal of the battle.

Ervin has promised Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield he won't block action on the amendment in Sen. Birch Bayh's constitutional amendments subcommittee. In return, Ervin has been guaranteed that the panel will not even bring it up for consideration until after Congress returns from a Christmas recess.

Meanwhile, Ervin will try to persuade others on Bayh's subcommittee and the full Judiciary Committee, of the constitutional amendment's "shortcomings" and try to enlist their aid in adding a few so-called corrective amendments.

Bayh's forces say Ervin's changes would nullify the measure's effect.

"We know Ervin's game," said one staff aide to Bayh's subcommittee. "He wants to give the courts enough of a loophole to drive a Mack truck through the whole purpose of the thing."

One move, Ervin said, will be to seek approval of a change nullifying the constitutional amendment's application where there are physiological or functional differences between men and women.

Ervin said he will then push for addition of language that would exempt women from the military draft, preserve their privacy and other protections.

But, Ervin said, "What it gets down to is equal employment opportunities." He said most women would be happy with equal pay for performing equal work and his changes, he contends, would provide for that.

"It would allow women to be bartenders (where it is now outlawed) and still let them be wrestlers if they want," he added.

Ervin said in case the Judiciary Committee rejects his changes, he hopes to line up enough support to kill the amendment on the Senate floor. Two-thirds approval is required for a constitutional amendment.

Color Expresses Mood

MINNEAPOLIS — When you get angry do you "see red?" And do you "feel blue" when things aren't going right?

Color is often used to express or describe moods. But color has a far more important function, according to a study by the Family Economics Bureau of Northwestern National Life Insurance Co. Color is a powerful force in determing moods, temperament and behaviour.

Color is part of life, yet most people are not aware of the influence it exerts. You may not be conscious of the colors around you, but they do things to you, whether you like it or not. Psychologists have found that 90% of our actions are prompted by emotion and only 10% by reason.

Reactions to color are an individual thing, yet there is enough similarity among people to be able to classify personality traits in terms of color, reports the Family Economics Bureau. Extroverts tend to favor bright, warm colors; introverts like subdued, cool colors.

Red goes with people who have a vital, if not a violent interest in the world. They are quick to judge, quick to act and they live eventful lives of ups and downs. A preference for yellow reveals intellectual extremes -- superior mental ability or retarded mentality.

Lovers of green, frequently social in nature, try to have the good things in life and to be well regarded by others. Blue-green people have difficulty in getting along with others and are frequently divorced.

A blue person tries to lead a steady life, seldom acting on impluse or taking chances. Navy blue devotees are the ultimate in conservatism.

Auto makers have found a key to personality in the color of the car a person drives. People who want to tell the world they are serious and responsible buy dark colored cars. Middle-of -the-roaders favor light colors.

A person who wants to express showiness and to assert his individualism goes for the two-tone and bright shades. One who wants to assume high or unusual status goes for the very bright colors, such as yellow and red.

Most people don't use reason when choosing the color of their car. Yellow cars are not big sellers, although because of their high visibility, they would be the safest color car to drive. Even though the drab and dark colors -- black, grey, beige and navy -- are far more likely to be involved in an accident, most people still seem to prefer them.

* * *

Medical tests show that blood pressure and respiration rates go up when a person is exposed to bright red color and decrease when under the influence of blues. There is more tension and excitement with red, while blue brings about a greater feeling of well-being and sense of calm. This makes soft blues and greens good colors for hospital rooms. Blue has also been found to be conducive to sleep and helpful in cases of insomnia.

The bright, warm colors -- red, orange and yellow -- provide ideal settings for vigorous, muscular tasks. The cool, tranquil blues and greens are especially suitable for rooms where mental concentration is important.

A fast-food restaurant or coffee shop, anxious for a quick turnover of customers is apt to be decorated in bright reds and yellows, with lots of light. In a restaurant where they would like to have you dawdle over dinner and drinks, the decor is usually soft and cool, with dim lighting.

Color can make you feel warm or cool. In one office, employees complained that an air-conditioned lounge, painted blue and grey, was too cold. The management painted the room brown and orange, but did nothing to change the temperature. There were no more complaints from employees of freezing!

Color also gives an indication of weight. Factory employees complained that the black boxes they used to tote parts were too heavy. A color-knowledgeable engineer had the boxes painted light blue and everyone was happy they were so much lighter!

Geographic, national, cultural and economic factors all play a part in color preference and reactions to color, according to Northwestern National Life. Where the sun is bright and abundant, people like their colors to be strong, rich and brilliant. When sunlight is more scarce, softer, dullers colors are preferred, especially the blues and greens. Latin people like reds -- Nordic people lean to the blues and greens. New Englanders like more conservative colors than Californians.

People seem to be particularly sensitive about the color of food. The acceptance of almost any food is determined by its color. For example, if butter is too white, it resembles lard; if too yellow, it appears rancid.

Heart Attack Killed Gridder

DETROIT (AP) — While football cannot be blamed for the heart attack which killed Detroit Lion Chuck Hughes, a team physician said Monday he would have advised Hughes to quit had he known the wide receiver suffered from a disease of the arteries.

Dr. Edward Guise, who announced the findings of an autopsy performed on Hughes by the Wayne County medical examiner, said the 28-year-old player suffered from hardening of the arteries which had cut off 70 per cent of his circulation.

Guise said that Hughes died when a blood clot blocked the remaining flow of blood to his heart. For all practical purposes, Guise said, Hughes died on the field where he fell in the closing seconds of the Lions Sunday game with the Bears at Tiger Stadium.

Guise and Dr. Richard Thompson, another team physician, said Hughes' condition worsened in any situation—including football—which caused him stress, physical or emotional.

Thompson said the disease would have killed Hughes eventually.

The doctors said that Hughes' collision with two Bears players three plays prior to his collapse did not precipitate the heart attack "except that it may have provided more stress."

It is also undetermined whether Hughes' death is related to a Sept. 4 pre-season game injury which led the player to complain of abdominal pains. A complete checkup—including cardiogram and arteriogram—following his injury failed to reveal any heart problems, Guise said.

However, Guise said, it is "unfortunately very routine to miss symptoms of arteriosclerotic disease (artery hardening)." He said Hughes himself probably did not know he had the illness.

Hughes was not taking any medication or drugs, the doctors reported. All medication prescriptions for players must be signed either by Guise or Thompson.

Neither doctor felt additional equipment or faster transportation to the hospital would have saved Hughes. Extra equipment at the stadium would be more helpful to spectators, who regularly suffer heart attacks at games, than to players, they said.

Vikings Slow Colts

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP) — Ed Sharockman grimly remembered what he called the early days of the Minnesota Vikings—days when Johnny Unitas and the Baltimore Colts used to burn him with long passes.

But Sharockman, and such an inanimate object as the goal post, doused Baltimore's touchdown flames Monday night, 103, in a National Football League defensive struggle decided in the final minute.

Unitas, who came into the game with 10:35 to play and the Colts down 10-0, grazed the underside of the goalpost on a fourth down play from the Minnesota two with 42 seconds to play. Ed Hinton, the intended receiver, was open but couldn't get to the ball that fluttered short of his diving attempt.

That was one of six times Baltimore reached the doorstep but couldn't climb in except for Jim O'Brien's 40-yard field goal in the fourth period. Sharockman helped stop three of the efforts.

Sharockman, a 10-year veteran from Pittsburgh also intercepted a Morrall pass at the Baltimore 29 to set up Minnesota's touchdown—a two-yard run by Dave Osborn.

With the help of the goalpost, Sharockman and the Vikings strengthened their hold on the NFC Central Division lead with a 5-1 record. The loss dropped the Colts, who won the total offense battle 276-153, behind Miami in the AFC-East with a 4-2 record.

Unitas said he had to improvise on the goal post play, which could have set off a wild controversy that Hinton caught the ball. A ball deflecting the post is ruled a dead ball.

The Vikings' offense never really got untracked until Gary Cuozzo, a former Colt, passed 26 yards to Oscar Reed and 20 yards to Stu Voigt to set up a 32-yard field goal by Fred Cox in the third period.

O'Brien, who had kicked 11 straight regular season field goals without a miss, was off target for the first time in 1971 with a 45-yard attempt in the second period. A holding penalty also nullified a 36-yard Morrall to Hinton pass to the Viking two in the same quarter.

Hello! A couple of weeks ago Wanda Baugher informed me she was going to bury her bowling ball, and invited me to the burial. Her reason was, the first week of this season she bowled a pretty good series and since then not to well and she decided her ball had died. Last Tuesday night she told me she had dug it up for one more try, and she did bowl better. I'll wait until this week and if she still does pretty good I may bury mine and I'm pretty sure we'll have several others join us. This is a crazy game but it sure is lots of fun.

SPORTS BRIEF

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The UCLA Bruins have lost talented sophomore back Kermit Johnson, with an ankle fracture.

X-rays Monday showed Johnson broke his left ankle when he caught his foot in the turf lunging for an extra yard last Saturday night against California. Johnson will be out indefinitely, a team spokesman said.

SAN MATEO, Calif. (AP) — The third race Monday at Bay Meadows was the $4,000 National Association of Letter Carriers Purse. It was won by Bad Dawg.

The most home runs hit by both teams in a World Series is 17. The figure was reached twice, by the New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers in six games in 1953 and by the same two teams in 1955 in seven games.

YOU BE THE QUARTERBACK

By Paul (Bear) Bryant
Head Coach, University of Alabama
Compliments of
Wal—Mart Discount Center

Twice when you, the Green Bay quarterback, have needed yardage, you have thrown to your tight end downfield behind your flanker, who started the play wide to your right. The flanker decoy has caused problems for the Los Angeles zone defense with the tight end taking the ball between zones of coverage.

Now you have a third down and five on the Ram 37-yard line, 24 yards from the left sideline. Your best running play, a pitchout to your fullback with your flanker and tight end cross-blocking on the Rams' linebacker and cornerback, has made 19 yards in four tries. With two minutes left in the third quarter and the Rams leading 24-21, what will you call:

1. Pass to tight end behind flanker going deep?
2. Pass to flanker deep?
3. Pitchout to fullback?
4. Off-tackle play right to get ball in field goal position?

Answer

No. 2. Pass to flanker deep has chance to score. If Rams stay in zone, strong safety has responsibility for his deep left corner. But there's a real temptation for him to go with tight end, who runs with safety toward corner, then suddenly turns away from him. If safety comes up, flanker is home free. If Rams go to man-to-man defense, strong safety will cover tight end and flanker will be one-on-one with cornerback. Pitchout could get first down. Don't play for tie on this down in the third quarter.

Sooners Close In On Huskers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

... and the beat goes on—the beatings which Oklahoma hand out, bringing the Sooners ever closer to the top of The Associated Press college football poll.

Nebraska, however, pounding Oklahoma State 41-13, remained No. 1. The defending national champion Cornhuskers amassed 31 first-place votes and 1,044 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. A week ago they had 35 and 1,046 points.

But the Sooners, crushing Kansas State 75-28, edged within 20 points of the top, garnering 21 first-place votes and 1,020 points. Only two weeks ago they moved past Michigan into second and within 168 of the Cornhuskers. Last week they slashed the margin to 38, collecting 18 top votes and 1,008 points.

Michigan, Alabama and Auburn, each receiving one of the remaining first-place votes, stayed third, fourth and fifth.

Michigan, whipping Minnesota 35-7, received 883 points, Alabama got 788 after defeating Houston 34-20 and Auburn, a 3513 victor over Clemson, picked up 637.

The first big casualty was Notre Dame, tumbling from sixth to 12th following a 28-14 loss to SouthernCalifornia. That gave Penn State, Georgia and Arkansas a chance to take one step forward.

The sixth-place Nittany Lions clubbed Texas Christian 66-14, the Bulldogs silenced Kentucky 34-0 and the No. 8 Razorbacks bombed North Texas State 6021.

Also skidding badly was Stanford, falling seven slots to 17th after losing 24-23 to Washington State. Colorado, whipping Missouri 27-7, climbed two spaces to ninth and Ohio State did the same, gaining 10th as a result of a 31-6 walloping of Wisconsin.

Louisiana State took command of the Second Ten, moving up from 13th to 11th despite being idle last weekend. Notre Dame, Arizona State, Texas, Toledo, Tennessee, Stanford, Air Force, Florida State and Southern Cal rounded out the Top Twenty.

Florida State, blasting South Carolina 49-18, and Southern Cal were the only newcomers, replacing Purdue, a 21-7 loser to Illinois, and Duke, nipped 1514 by Navy.

Last week Colorado led the Second Ten, followed by Ohio State, LSU, Arizona State and Toledo tied for 14th, Texas., Purdue, Tennessee, Duke and Air Force.

Bulldog JV Tops Cape

Sikeston's junior varsity gridders rallied in the closing minutes Monday night at Public School stadium to trip Cape Central, 7-6.

Quarterback Richard Blankenship connected on a 15-yard pass to Billy Wake for a touchdown with a minute and half left in the game and Danny Nelson put the Bulldogs ahead with his extra point boot.

The Bengals scored early in the game.

SHS had drives stalled on the Tigers, four-yard line twice and once on the 15 before going over late in the contest to post the victory.

The Bulldog freshman suffered a 16-0 defeat at the hands of Caruthersville Saturday. CHS scored in the first and second quarter while the Bulldogs had drives stalled within 15 yards of theTigers goal line three times.

Coach George Hale's freshmen travel to Charleston Thursday and will be host to Perryville a week from Thursday in the season final.

The nominations from Nebraska are four offensive players, guard Dick Rupert, quarterback Jerry Tagge, I-back Jeff Kinney and slotback Johnny Rodgers, and four defensive players, safety Bill Kosch, tackle Larry Jacobson, middle guard Rich Glover and end Willie Harper.

The six Oklahmans are quarterback Jack Mildren, halfbacks Joe Wylie and Greg Pruitt, center Tom Brahaney, tight end Al Chandler and one player from the defensive unit, end Ray Hamilton.

Ten other players were nominated in the board's first action of the season, three from Iowa State, three from Kansas State, two from Oklahoma State and two from Kansas.

The other nominations:

Iowa State—Quarterback Dean Carlson, linebacker Keith Schroeder and defensive back Matt Blair.

Oklahoma State -Flanker Dick Graham and defensive back Tom Carraway.

The other major college District 5 board members are Joe McGuff, sports editor of the Kansas City Star; Fred White, sports director of WIBW, Topeka, Kan., and Bob Hurt, columnist of the Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City, Okla.

FRED HAPPE, 822 Harvard, shows off the head of an 800 -pound three - point Elk he killed on a hunting trip near Alamosa, Colo.

Huskers Prepare For Buffs' Visit

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Nebraska Coach Bob Devaney feels that at long last the topranked Cornhuskers are going to find out how good they are Saturday when they battle ninth-ranked Colorado.

"We haven't faced a real top team in the country," Devaney said Monday during the Big Eight Conference weekly telephone briefing. "That's what we'll be doing against Colorado Saturday.

"I really don't know if we're overrated or not but if we're not ready for Colorado, it's going to be a long afternoon. If I knew any weaknesses about Colorado, I doubt if I would discuss them publicly."

Jerry Tagge, the Nebraska quaterback, agreed that Colorado is the "toughest we've played on our schdule to date. We'll be higher for Colorado than any other team this season. We're playing for all of the marbles right now."

Colorado Coach Eddie Croer said he planned to use both sophomore quarterbacsk, Ken Johnson and Joe Duenas, against the Cornhuskers and that he hoped Herb Orvis, injured for several weeks, would be ready 100 per cent to lead the Buffs' defense.

"To shut Nebraska off," Crowder said, "we have to play better than we have played all year. To stop Nebraska you have to have a great defense and play great."

Keith Schroeder, the Iowa State linebacker, said he was impressed "but now overawed" by Oklahoma and said bluntly, "I don't think anybody's going to paly defense against Oklahoma like we are."

Johnny Majors, the Iowa State coach who must send his team against second-ranked Oklahoma Saturday, predicted the Sooners "would have to have a bad, bad day for anybody to stop them, and I'm not a pessimist. I think you might have to score 40 points against Oklahoma to win.

"I think Oklahoma has the greatest running game the game has ever seen. Our offense will have to carry the big load. we'll go after them the best we can."

Majors was reminded that Oklahoma smother Kansas State 75-28 last week as if he needed reminding.

"With us playing them this week," Majors quipped, "I'm sure not going to ask Chuck Fairbanks if he runs up the score on teams."

Bank Credit Cards Breed Discontent

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Sixty million Americans are using bank credit cards to charge purchases at a rate of about $8 billion a year. But the profit bonanza envisioned by banks is yet to materialize and many merchants have become disenchanted.

Some financial sources estimate that banks lost an aggregate $115 million on their credit card operations in 1970 and that they are likely to go even deeper into the red this year.

Difficulty in generating a profit from the proliferating card business is attributed to customer fraud, theft, default on account payments, mismanagement, collusion by merchants and the high cost of processing records of transactions.

The American Bankers Association reports that 9,111 banks are involved in card operations, some on their own and many in association with others.

The number of merchants accepting bank cards is estimated by industry sources at 800,000.

Banks stepped into the credit card arena in 1951 on a local basis. In 1966 the operation became national when Bank of America of San Francisco began frachising its BankAmericard to other banks throughout the country.

Bank cards are used mainly for retail purchases while cards issued by American Express, Diner's Club and Carte Blanche are used primarily for travel and entertainment.

Master Charge, issued by an association of banks called Interbank, is the biggest bank card operation, with sales volume of $3.4 billion in 1970. BankAmericard was second with $2.7 billion.

Another big one is Unicard, issued by Chase Manhattan Bank of New York. Chase says it has two million card holders and 30,000 merchants in its system in nine states. Chase declined to disclose Unicard's dollar volume.

Associated Credit Bureaus, Inc., wpth headquarters in Houston, Tex., says in a report on bank credit cards that they should be "a made-to-order, punched-plastic key to the heavenly gates of financial growth and well-being."

"But," it adds, "there are rumblings of discontent in paradise."

The association says many banks are re-evaluating their position in the credit card business; some are dropping their programs and some are transferring them to other banks.

"On the merchant side of it, similar discontent has set in," the association says. "Many smaller retailers in particular are questioning the worth of bank card programs, feeling that the benefits to them are few, if any.

"During the recent period of inflation, increasing costs and smaller profit margins convinced many that the bank card-generated business did not justify the discount rates charged by the bank or the delayed retailer income inherent in the program.

BEDC Elects Officers

MALDEN — Three men were hired by the Botheel Economic Development Council and Regional Planning Commission and officers were elected during the monthly meeting in Malden Thursday night.

Moody Summitt, a former Cardwell man, was hired as a health planner with the commission. Tom Mason, Lilbourn, was employed as an accountant and Jay Wagner was hired as project director of the solid waste program.

Election of officers for the Economic Development Council was also held with Judge John Calvin, New Madrid, elected vice - chairman; R. J. Dirks, Malden, treasurer; and John Greer, Senath, secretary. Pat Lea, Sikeston, is the chairman.

Ron Yersak, planner in charge of the commission, explained to those at the meeting city sketch plans being developed for towns in the commission.

The plans include property within the city, houses, utilities and conditions of streets. The plans also rate the houses as either satisfactory, substandard or dilapidated. These plans are presented to cities that can pick out areas where the houses are 20 per cent dilapidated and seek a federal grant.

The commission also gave its approval for an application for a federal grant to help finance a nursing home to be located in Hayti under the Accelerated Public Works Program.

Adding Machine

NEW MADRID --An adding machine, electric welder, two saws, an electric drill, and a battery charger were taken in a breakin Thursday night of the Triangle Concrete Company in New Madrid.

The highway patrol said entry was gained by prying open he front door.

The Patrol said the adding machine was valued at $133.39 and the electric welder at $113.

Light Side Of Wage-Price Freeze

A look at the lighter side of the wage-price freeze reveals that everything from court costs to kids' allowances has been caught in the squeeze.

The Office of Emergency Preparedness ruled, for example, that the Municipal Court in Lincoln, Neb., has to refund part ofsthe court costs collected between Aug. 27 and Sept. 28.

It seems the court, in accordance with an authorization from the 1971 legislature, increased costs from $7 to $8. The OEP said the increase was in violation of the presidential freeze and ordered refunds. Court officials said about 2,500 persons were entitled to money back.

Another OEP ruling roled back the deposit for dormitory keys at Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y.

The fee was increased from $1 to $15 in an effort to provide greater security, but two students complained to the OEP and the school was ordered to refund the extra $14 to some 5,300 dormitory residents.

Twin sisters Linda and Lisa Byron of Loudonville, N.Y., didn't need an official ruling to decide to do their part for the economy. The 10-year-olds voluntarily turned down a 10-cent increase in their weekly 25-cent allowances.

The girls' mother wrote to the White House about the action and Linda and Lisa got a letter from President Nixon's daughter, Julie Eisenhower.

"My father shared your note with me and we were delighted to learn that the wage-price freeze is working in your home," the letter read in part.

Two cities got caught on thin ice in connection with the freeze.

The Concord, N.H., Youth Hockey Association was told it couldn't increase tuition from $40 to $50 a season as planned. Charles Blossom, president of the group, said that because of the OEP ruling, the group faces a $3,000 deficit since an increase in rental fees took effect before the freeze and still applies.

The City of New York faced problems in connection with its ice skating rinks. Back in July, the city published a notice that the fee at the rinks would be raised from 25 to 50 cents.

But, said a city spokesman, mere publication of the increase wasn't enough. Since nobody actually was charged the higher fee before the freeze went into effect Aug. 15 it had to be rolled back.

Still in dispute is a case involving the price of football tickets at the University of Southern California. USC raised prices for regular games from $6 to $6.50 and the school says that of 167,197 sold so far for the 1971 season, 152,627 were sold before the freeze began.

The OEP said USC had to refund the extra money and the school has filed suit in U.S. District Court, appealing the ruling and naming as defendants the Cost of Living Council and Ralph D. Burns, regional director of the OEP.

LARGER QUARTERS have been made available for the Britton Upholstery in Vanduser on Main street. The firm has taken over the Church of Christ building.

Britton Upholstery Expands

VANDUSER — Britton Upholstery, owned by Bob Britton, has come a long way.

He opened his business in the basement of his home, where he operated for a year. His business kept increasing.

He then moved in the old post office building but soon outgrew it.

Britton saw an opportunity when the Church of Christ built a new structure. He decided to take over the old church.

His new quarters needed little remodeling other than painting and clearing the floor for work space. He has 7,300 square feet of space.

He employed Bill Partin, formerly with Harry Buckles upholstery in Sikeston, with nine years experience.

The firm handles all types of furniture and truck seat upholstering.

Is now the time to buy land?

Acquiring that new farm without delay might seem more practical if you considered the benefits of financing through the Federal Land Bank. Today's expensive land is easier to pay for when its cost is amortized over extra years with a long-term Land Bank Loan. Your total cost of borrowing, too, can be less with a Land Bank loan.

As your local Land Bank Association, we offer a complete loan service: We know current land values; we will inspect the property being considered. We will examine your overall plans and resources, and make an income projection. We will then make a loan recommendation that fits your needs precisely and, whenever possible, provide the capital it takes to meet your goals.

Central Disposal Sites Solid Waste Solution

KENNETT — No one is more interested or involved in the increasing problem of solid waste disposal in the six - county area of the Bootheel than the members of the Bootheel Economic Development Council and Regional Planning Commission in Malden.

The commission is working toward developing a Regional Solid Waste Management Plan to analyze the problems of waste disposal management.

Legislation has been passed stating that cities must come up with a solid waste disposal plan other than open burning by 1974 and must halt open burning by 1975.

Several laws have been introduced in the Missouri legislature but none covering solid waste disposal have yet been passed.

Phillip Shelton, executive director of the BEDC, said the federal law on pollution isn't what prompted the council to begin a study on solid waste.

"We felt the Bootheel had the need for a better solid waste disposal operation as opposed to open burning," Shelton said. "We were able to get a grant from the federal government, with one-fourth of the money coming from the area, to study the problem," he said.

Basically, the study will focus on four main points of solid waste in the six - county area. The main point in the study is finding a suitable way of collecting the tons of garbage from individual sites. Then comes the problem of where to store the garbage before it is picked up to be taken to the disposal site. These areas would be called sub - collection points. Thirdly, the study would offer the most effective means of disposing of the garbage, either by incineration or land fills or a combination of both. The fourth area of the study would be the feasibility of recycling the waste material.

"I think this solid waste plan will have far - reaching effects, within the next 10 years, perhaps," Shelton said.

Ron Yersak, who is working on the study, said New Madrid county has begun working on a landfill operation with assistance from the council.

Steele, Caruthersville and Hayti are now in the process of selecting a site for a landfill to be used by all three cities that will meet state requirements.

Shelton said a regional solid waste disposal plan would work best in the Bootheel due to the high cost of the equipment used in the landfill andthe cost of transporting the garbage to the landfill.

"A small town couldn't afford the expense going it alone," said Jay Wagner, who is also working on the study.

He continued, "Cities can join together, through the commission and get the solid waste plan costs reduced. We are able to incorporate several plans, using data from one study to fill in on another one and save money. Thus, the 55 cities in the six - county Bootheel commission can unite and fight the problem together."

Wagner said the solid waste disposal problem has been with us for some time. Pre -historic man even collected his garbage and piled it all in one spot. Even he didn't know what to do with it.

The study being conducted by the commission will be completed in December, 1972. It will take into consideration the volume of garbage present and forecast the amount for future years. A geological study will also show the most suitable site for the landfill, if that is the type of system proposed.

The study will also show what method of financing the system would require and what system to be used.

Shelton said he hopes to have a plan where the people will select the final plan after the study is drawn up.

If a landfill is chosen as the means of disposing of the waste, the land is not wasted. After a hole has been filled with the garbage and covered with a specified layer of dirt, it can be used for several things, such as city parks or recreation areas, or in some instances, a parking lot.

Wagner said the Bootheel area has a high water table and finding suitable sites for the landfills may present some problems because the trench cannot be dug through water. He also noted that most of the soil in this part of the county is sandy, and the preferable soil is clay.

He said the geological study would show what areas are best suited for the landfills. He said that once the land has been used as a landfill, it is recorded in the county courts.

Shelton said that in a properly operated and maintained landfill, insects and rodents are not a problem. Six inches of dirt covers the garbage and prevents the emergence of houseflies.

The Missouri Department of Health estimates there are 200 promiscuous dumps in the bootheel, Shelton said. These dumps contribute to air, water and land pollution. The "city dump" is a breeding ground of disease - carrying rodents and insects.

The growth in population and economy naturally yeilds an increase in the total amount of solid waste each year.

A Missouri Division of Health survey indicated that Missouri residents are generating approximately 4.2 million tons of solid waste per year, not including uncollected agricultural and mining wastes, or an average of 4.9 pounds per person per day.

A solid waste technical advisory committee, composed of interested citizens, work with the commission.

With the growing amount of solid waste being generated, Wagner said that people will eventually come up with a recycling system, but until then the sanitary landfill is the best system for the Bootheel.

What's The Law

Football Is Rough Game

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

The way McGirk could go around his own end, he could have been a contoriionist instead of a football player. His anticipation of having a great season as a quarterback came to an abrupt end during the first game when an opposing player zoomed down on him like a dreadnought.

With several ribs sunken, he had to be put away in a plaster cast for the remainder of the season. Determined to have the opposing player put away also, McGirk had him charged with criminal assault and battery.

"When that guy clobbered me," McGirk told the judge, "he did it with every intention of knocking me out of the game. He didn't just hit me, he attacked me. The fact is, he couldn't play clean if he was on the scrub team."

"Football's a rough sport that involves physical contact," was the defense. "And, when you tackle a man, he's supposed to stay tackled. If McGirk couldn't take it, he should have tried out for a potsy team."

IN YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict the opposing player of assault and battery?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that a football player can be found guilty of assault and battery where his conduct is proven to be reckless and indifferent to the safety of other players. But, concluded the judge, there was insufficient proff in this case that McGirk was the victim of such reckless or indifferent conduct. (Based upon a 1949 Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court Decision).

Prisoners Given Drugs

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A drug powerful enough to lull some inmates for as long as two weeks is being used at the Missouri Penitentiary to quell violent outbursts, an attorney for inmates charged Sunday.

Gerald R. Walsh of the Legal Aid & Defender Society of Kansas City said doctors at the prison "shoot up" inmates with the drug Prolixin after making clinical judgments they are phychotic.

The drug has been used on some inmates regularly for as long as two years, Walsh said, because when "he comes down, he might revert to antisocial behavior.

"What we see here is a chemical solution to a behavior problem; it is not directed at helping the man, at helping him change."

Walsh spoke at All Souls Unitarian Church in the final segment of a four-part series on the criminal correction system.

Dr. Leo Baker, chief medical officer at the penitentiary in Jefferson City, said Sunday night Prolixin is administered to 30 or 40 inmates at the prison.

"It's considered a mild tranquilizer," Baker said. "It does have side effects, much like other drugs have."

Baker disagreed with a conclusion by Walsh that the drug acts as a "functional lobotomy," a reaction as effective as severing nerve fibers in the brain.

Muscle stiffness is a common reaction, Baker said, but medication is administered to counteract this.

"There's no experimentation involved," he said. "It's used in large amounts in mental hospitals. I use a very small amount."

He said the drug is used on inmates who are normally in trouble.

"Now they are quiet and they work. They are much better, more manageable inmates. They're happier."

A pharmacist described Prolixin as a phenothiazine tranquilizer closely related to, but somewhat stronger than the more common Thorazine, a strong sedative. The pharmacist doubted the accuracy of Walsh's description — "functional lobotomy" — saying the claims of Prolixin's great potency had not been adequately demonstrated.

Missouri Heeds Road Building Signal

JEFFERSON CITY — Missouri is making every effort to take full advantage of the green light -- perhaps temporary -- on highway construction given by Federal officials.

Director of Highways Thomas A. David said the department was processing projects through to the division Federal Highway Administration office "as quickly as possible."

Decisions on the projects submitted are being made daily on a first - come first - served basis in Washington, D.C., he said.

Recent department bid lettings have averaged about $11 million monthly. Chief Engineer Robert N. Hunter said the November and January lettings could total about $60 million "if all projects we plan to submit are approved by the Federal Highway Administration."

The Missouri move followed a three - pronged announcement by Transportation Secretary John Volpe: In effect, Volpe said:

1. President Nixon has approved a $400 million increase in fiscal year 1972 highway allocations. This would change the fiscal year budget ceiling from the $4.6 billion announced previously to a new ceiling of $5.0 billion. Volpe said the $400 million, augmented by $273 million carried over from the allocation for the July - September quarter, would enable states to channel funds quickly into highway safety projects.

2. The regular $1.145 billion allocation for the October - December quarter will not be allocated on a state - by -state basis, as is the normal procedure, but is available on a first - come -first - served basis. In other words, the "frozen" apportionments are thawed -- until and unless the quarterly allocation is exhausted.

3. The fiscal year 1973 apportionment will be made shortly, thus making it possible to release funds to any state which exhausts its fiscal year 1972 apportionment.

Hunter said that Missouri was fortunate in having projects ready to move now. But, he said, the federal "on-again, off-again" policy makes long range planning by the states "extremely difficult."

David said he hoped the federal release of held -back funds indicated that federal officials realized the importance of keeping a "high level" of highway activity.

Exhibit Will Mark Anniversary

The Southeast Missouri chapter of the Telephone Pioneers of America will celebrate the 60th anniversary of the organization Thursday by setting up a mobile exhibit of their contribution to community service at Kingsway Plaza Mall Wednesday.

The exhibit will be in a converted school bus.

The theme of the 60th anniversary celebration is "Sixty Years of Human Service."

The organization has 350,000 members in the United States and Canada, and is the world's largest voluntary association of industrial employes.

Members are active and retired telephone company employes with 21 or more years of service.

Although they originally organized largely as a social organization, Pioneers today are active in community service projects of almost every description.

Nationally, the Pioneers continue a long association with the Library of Congress and its talking book program, and are involved in projects that bring hope and aid to the disadvantaged, handicapped, retarded and aged.

Most dramatic, perhaps, are the talking doll and animal projects which originated in Reading, Pa. Working with nearby schools for the retarded, Pioneers devised a walkie - talkie system that teachers can use to talk through a doll or stuffed animal with children who are otherwise almost impossible to reach.

Another Pioneer innovation is the audio ball, a beeping softball that blind children can learn to throw, chase, catch and even hit. Invented in Denver, audio balls are now in use in schools for the blind all over the country.

Phantom Cannon Search To Resume Next Spring

CASSVILLE, Mo. (AP) — A search will be resumed next spring for a phantom Civil War cannon that has been an Ozark legend for nearly 100 years.

Three Cassville business men—Jay Hull, John Pottebaum and Don Brock—went after the cannon in earnest early this year, using a bulldozer and power shovel on weekends to move tons of earth and rubble rock.

Generations of residents in the Cassville area have passed along the story that the brassbarreled cannon was pushed into a 20-foot deep swimming hole in Flat Creek by either Union or Confederate troops fleeing their enemy between 1861 and 1864.

A wheel of the gun carriage was smashed on a rock, the story goes, and the gun crew dumped the weapon into the creek to conceal it from the foe.

Both sides were using the old Wire Road, then the only route between Springfield, Mo., and Fort Smith, Ark

An oldtimer, Dave Ware, owns the land where the digging is proceeding.sHe can show you where the Wire Road crossed his land before it was abandoned in 1918 in favor of the straighter Barry County Route Y.

Flat Creek changed its course in a 1940 flood and the storytellers believe the cannon was buried in the old channel.

The search crew used core drilling equipment to trace the old channel. Then heavy earthmoving machinery dug a swath 100 feet long, 50 feet wide and 20 feet deep.

The only things found were some pumps and other old equipment which apparently had been used long ago by others seeking the cannon.

Hull said he believes they have found the old swimming hole, but because of uncertain Ozark winter weather, the work will be abandoned until spring.

Nationalists Expelled

Communist China Seated

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. General Assembly voted Monday night to admit Communist China to the United Nations and expel Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist regime in a major defeat for the United States.

By a vote of 76 to 35, with 17 abstentions, the assembly adopted an Albanian resolution recognizing representatives of the People's Republic of China as "the only legitimate representatives of China" to the United Nations and expelling "forthwith the representatives of Chiang Kai-shek."

Earlier in the night the assembly voted 59 to 55, with 15 abstentions, to reject a U.S. resolution to make expulsion of the Nationalists an "important question" requiring a twothirds majority for adoption.

Among the U.S. allies who broke with Washington and voted against the U.S. resolution were Britain, Canada, Denmark, France, Norway and Pakistan. Belium and Italy abstained.

As it turned out, the Albanian resolution got more than a twothirds majority. Its adoption killed a rival U.S. resolution to provide "dual representation," for both the Communists and the Nationalists, a situation Peking said repeatedly it would not accept.

The Nationalists did not wait for the final vote. After defeat of the "important question" resolution, Foreign Minister Chow Shu-kai led his delegation out, ending the Chinese Republic's 26 years as a charter member of the United Nations.

"We have severed our connection with this building," said a member of the delegation from Taiwan.

Less than an hour after the Albanian resolution was adopted at 11:17 p.m. EDT, Secretary-General U Thant cabled the text to Peking as notification that the People's Republic was finally in after 22 years of trying.

There was no immediate response or comment from Peking.

From the rostrum, Vice Foreign Minister Reis Malile of Albania called the outcome "a victory for the peace-loving peoples and a great defeat for the United States of America." Sir Colin Crowe of Britain termed it a "return to reality."

U.S. Ambassador George Bush told reporters: "The U.N. has crossed a dangerous bridge, the bridge of expulsion ... I hope the U.N. will not relive this moment of infamy."

Bush said Nationalist China would survive outside the United Nations, but American public reaction would be bad and he did not know what Congress would do.

No March Permits To Serve Notice

WASHINGTON (AP) — Antiwar protesters, their first day of demonstrations virtually washed out by rain, plan to march on the White House today to serve President Nixon with an eviction notice.

Rennie Davis, a leader in the People's Coalition for Peace and Justice, sponsor of the protest, told about 400 youths Monday night permits for the march had been denied.

The crowd roared its approval when asked if they should march anyway and Davis declared: "We should figure on massive civil disobedience at the White House."

Meanwhile, in Killeen, Tex., a Veterans Day march Monday to protest the Indochina war ended when police arrested 112 servicemen, their wives and other supporters near Ft. Hood. Most of he demonstrators were charged with parading without a permit.

In Birmingham, Ala., 100 extra policemen watched as 10,000 persons marched before 250,000 spectators in what was billed as the nation's largest Veterans Day parade. Only minor incidents were reported.

Davis was one of several speakers who addressed the activists Monday after their planned rally at the Washington Monument and a candlelight march near the White House had been rained out.

The group also planned to receive a trans-Atlantic phone call from the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong negotiators at the Paris peace talks before the march to the White House.

But the chilling rain, which started about noon and continued into the night, sent the young demonstrators scattering to various churches and universities in Washington and it was almost 6 p.m. before they could be assembled again.

Davis told the crowd to meet at the Washington Monument about noon today for speeches, rock music and the trans-Atlantic phone call. He said the march on the White House would begin aboutthree hours later.

Also addressing the crowd Monday night was civil rights activist Hosea Williams, who said the issue of Vietnam must be kept alive.

Only a small crowd sat through rain-drenched Veterans Day ceremonies at Arlington National Cemetery to hear Vice President Spiro T. Agnew call for support of President Nixon's war policies. Agnew placed a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

U. S. Money To U. N. May Get Major Slash

WASHINGTON (AP) — A fight to slash America's money to the United Nations for expelling Taiwan was shaping in the Senate today with more advance votes lined up against it then for it.

Sen. James L. Buckley, ConR-N.Y., announced immediately after the 76-35 U.N. expulsion vote Monday night that he is drafting legislation for a "major reduction" of the U.S. financial contribution.

An effort to tack the fund cut onto the foreign aid bill before the Senate in the next two weeks is a possibility, his office said.

"This will do no more than reflect a major downgrading of the U. N.'s role in the eyes of most Americans," Buckley said in a statement issued in New York.

Buckley and 20 other senators issued a declaration last month that the United States should "reassess its financial and moral support of the United Nations" if Taiwan was ousted, but 32 senators issued a letter Monday denouncing a fund cut.

Sen. Peter H. Dominick, RColo., charging America was handed the defeat after paying 35 per cent of the United Nations' support, joined Buckley's drive.

Senate and House Republican leaders Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania and Gerald R. Ford of Michigan issued a statement over the weekend saying the United Nations could not expect the degree of its present U.S. support if it expelled Taiwan.

But the 32 senators repudiating Buckley's cut included Republican National Chairman Robert Dole of Kansas and all four major potential Democratic presidential contenders—Sens. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, George S. McGovern of South Dakota and Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota.

Three-fourths of the House, 336 members, joined 67 senators in urging that Taiwan be kept in the United Nations but only 33 House members joined the 21 senators in suggesting U.S. money be cut if Chiang Kai-shek's government was expelled.

Check Writer Gets Term

One-year probation on a charge of writing insufficient funds checks against Billie Wilkening of Matthews was revoked this morning by magistrate Jerry Briggs.

A warrant was issued for Wilkening's arrest when Briggs learned the man was accused of writing other bad checks.

He was sentenced to three months in the county jail in April but the jail time was stayed and he was placed on probation.

He was ordered to the county jail in Benton.

Byron Klingel of 235 Watson waived his preliminary hearing on a charge of burglary and stealing and was bound over to circuit court for a Nov. 26 appearance. Klingel and Calvin Adams, also of Sikeston, are charged with a July 13 theft of money from the Eagle Shell Service Station. Following their arrest, the two admitted to nine other area thefts involving them and other Sikeston youths.

A. C. James of Miner was fined $5 for having no cover on the bed of his truck and $25 for permitting an unauthorized operator to drive his truck. Dickie Turner of Blodgett, named with James in the traffic violation was fined $10 for having no chauffuer's license.

A warrant was issued for the arrest of Roy Newberry of Charleston when he failed to appear to face a charge of having no operator's license.

Other cases heard:

James Maddox, Sikeston, failure to exercise care, $15; Charles Manning, East St. Louis, $50, misuse of operator's license; Samuel Vines, 811 Gulf, expired behicle license, $15.

Tony Clark, 201 Edwards, unlicensed operator, $15; Charles Drake, Canalou, defective brakes, $15; and Terry Woods, Bertrand, speeding $20.

A charge of possession of intoxicating beverages levied against Joe Manard James Jr., was taken under advisement by Judge Briggs.

Wants Decent Life

JACKSON, Mo. (AP) -- Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth said Monday night "wars can no longer be a rallying point for out country. Patriotism and militarism cannot be confused with each other."

The only kind of a world war today would be a nuclear war, he said, and "such a prospect is unthinkable. In a nuclear war there can be no winner, there can be only destruction of hundreds of millions of lives and all civilization as we know it."

At the same time, he said in a speech prepared for an American Legion Veterans Day program, "we have seen in Vietnam that brush-fire wars do not inspire the kind of national unity and pride that was the case through 1945."

Today's task, he said, "is to develop a spirit of national unity and purpose which does not entail the necessity of war. We must consciously think of ourselves as one people, dedicated not to destroying a common foe, but to building a decent life for all Americans'"

Building a united country, he said, can be accomplished without creating foreign enemies and must be accomplished in an atmosphere of peace.

Snipers Battle Troops

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — British troops battled snipers across the Irish border today and in the backstreets of Belfast. Two deaths elsewhere brought Northern Ireland's twoyear toll to 135.

One of the dead was found gagged and bound and shot through the head, apparently the victim of an "execution" squad. The other died of bullet wounds received in a street gunbattle Saturday.

Two soldiers were wounded, one seriously, in a shootout between troops and snipers in Belfast's Lower Falls district.

Army headquarters said snipers opened fire on British soldiers blowing up a road into the Irish republic to the south. The troops returned fire across the frontier in a 45-minute skirmish.

None of the soldiers was hit. The army is blowing up frontier roads to cut down arms smuggling into the north.

The gunfight followed a night of street battles and shooting in the north, and a riot in the Longkesh internment camp where prisoners seized four hostages and battled British troops firing nausea gas. The hostages were freed unharmed. About 260 suspected guerrillas are being held without trial in the camp.

In Belfast, police found the gagged and blindfolded body of a young man shot through the head in an alleyway. Detectives said he was evidently killed by the Irish Republican Army.

Hi-Jacked Plane Grounded

MIAMI, Fla, (AP) — A hijacked Boeing 747 jumbo jet sat on the ground at Havana's Jose Marti Airport today and federal authorities said it probably would not be allowed to leave until Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin touched down in the Cuban capital.

"This is just my opinion," said a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration, "but I bet Castro would like to have a 747 on the runway when Kosygin gets there."

The Soviet premier was scheduled to arrive for a state visit today.

The American Airlines plane was hijacked Monday night after leaving New York en route to San Juan, Puerto Rico. Officials said 236 persons were aboard the plane, including three sky marshals and an offduty FBI agent when a lone gunman diverted it to Cuba.

"Since then, we've heard nothing,' said the FAA spokesman. "They're really closedmouth this time."

American said it learned of the hijack from a prearranged "special signal" abroad the plane, designed to alert ground personnel that a hijack was in progress.

"A male has a gun on a stewardess in the first class lounge and indicates he wants to go to Havana," the pilot later radioed Kennedy, according to an FAA spokesman in Washington.

What actions, if any, were taken by the sky marshals or the FBI agent were not know, the spokesman said.

American's flight 96 started in Dallas, boarded most of its passengers in New York and touched down at Jose Marti at 9:58 p.m.

Woman Hurt

PARMA-- A Malden woman sustained chest injuries in a two-car collision one half mile west of Parma on route D early Tuesday at 7:23 a.m.

A 1965 Ford traveling east, driven by Brenda Sue Miller, 18, of Malden, struck a 1959 Chevrolet going south, driven by Leo Lane, 61, of Parma, the highway patrol said, when the Chevrolet pulled in front of the Miller car.

The Malden woman was taken to Dexter Memorial hospital.

Road Bids Open

Bids were opened Friday for widening and resurfacing of highway 25 from Dexter to White Oak in Stoddard County and Dunklin county.

William H. Shaw, district highway engineer, said the work includes all the route from Dexter to White Oak except that portion through Bernie, Malden, and Clarkton.

He said the apparent low bidders were Missouri Petroleum Company of Overland and Tri-City Asphalt Company of Alton, Ill. Shaw said the amount of the bids would not be released until the highway commision acts.

"The highway commission will consider the bids and either award the contracts or reject the bids sometime next month," Shaw said. He added that if the bids are found satisfactory, work will begin on the project next spring.

PRINCE OF CRIMINALS

There is a remarkable silence in the American media about Meyer Lansky. This man is characterized as the Chairman of the Board of organized crime in the United States.

For those who are unaware of Lansky's almost limitless power, Hank Messick's book, Lansky, published by Putnam, will be a shocker. This book offers a careful profile of America's most powerful criminal and reveals that crime and politics are closely linked.

The Wall Street Journal described Lansky as an "Underworld Genius," in an article by staff reporter Nicholas Gage, entitled "How One Gang Leader Thrives While Others Fall by the Wayside" (Nov. 19, 1969). As the most powerful leader of organized crime in the U. S., Lansky has enjoyed a mysterious immunity from criticism by the press. This in itself gives evidence of his power.

With grudging admiration, an F.B.I. agent says, "If Meyer Lansky had gone into legitimate business instead of into the mob back in the 1920s, he'd be the chairman of the board of General Motors today." It was Lansky who persuaded the crime syndicate to de-emphasize such highrisk and high-publicity ventures as narcotics, prostitution and murder-by-contract and to plunge into the safer, more profitable fields of banking, insurance, real estate and gambling, both legal and illegal.

Lansky pioneered in developing the intricate network of fronts that allows the syndicate to operate numerous enterprises without revealing a visible connection to them. Mob money, for example, is sent to numbered bank accounts in Switzerland via courier. Middlemen in Europe then draw out some of the money and send it to agents, usually lawyers or brokers, in the U.S., sometimes with specific instructions on how to invest it in any manner the agent sees fit.

The middleman in Europe knows who he is working for. The agent who deals with the middleman usually does not. FBI agents estimate Lansky's personal fortune in numbered accounts abroad may exceed $300 million. Crime pays for Lansky.

Meyer Lansky's success makes a mockery of American justice. National outrage is the appropriate response to this criminal. But this response will not take place until the media dare to unmask him. It is frightening to imagine the reasons why the media has not done so.

ENGLISH TIME

Winter in England is a dark time. In December the sun rises after 9 a.m. and sets before 5 p.m. in London. For the past three years Britain has been experimenting with setting the clock forward an hour all year round, not just in the summer. But after a lengthy survey, the Commons voted last year by a majority of 285 votes to put the clocks back on Sunday, Oct. 31.

Until the middle of the 19th Century, time was calculated locally and there was no standard time. In 1859 a man was tried for a crime in Dorchester, England, and when he arrived in court he found that he had been sentenced in absentia because the court used one local time and he used another. Internationally the situation was even more confused. In 1884 a conference was held in Washington which adopted the Greenwich Meridian in England as longitude 0 degrees, the reference point for standard time throughout the world.

It didn't take long for people to start fiddling with the clocks again. During World War I Walter Rathenau, who was in charge of raw materials for the German war effort, discovered that the productivity of the workers could be increased by moving the clock forward an hour during the summer months. Germany introduced daylight saving time in 1916 and most other countries followed. During World War II all clocks in the United States were advanced one hour for the period from Feb. 9, 1942, to Sept. 30, 1945. And in 1966 Congress passed a bill which established daylight saving time in the summer throughout the nation.

The time in most of Europe is always one hour ahead of Greenwich Mean Time, with no change in the summer. Russia, for example, adopted this system in 1930. Britain tried to adapt to the European system in 1968, to pave the way for entrance into the Common Market. But public opinion was against it. As James Callaghan, the former Home Secretary, said: "The plain truth is that we just do not have enough hours of daylight to go around, however you play with them." So next month Britain will once more be the home of Greenwich Mean Time.

A VOICE FOR 61 MILLION

This nation is poised on the threshold of Phase II of the Nixon Administration's economic stabilization program.

And what Phase II ushers in may determine the direction of the nation's economy for generations to come.

Yet, shockingly, recent press accounts indicate that 61,000,000 members of the nation's labor force will not be represented on the tripartite Pay Board (President Nixon is appointing its members now) during the initial, crucial months of Phase II.

Who are the 61,000,000? The overwhelming majority (80%) of the American work force that is not affiliated with organized labor.

This 80% will be sealed off from representation on the tripartite Pay Board in favor of the five professional unionists who will be designated "labor" representatives.

No one argues that union officials should not be on that Board as spokesmen for that distinct minority of American workers they represent. But what of the 61,000,000?

There's no conceivable way the union hierarchy can presume to speak for them. In fact, the union hierarchy can't even presume to speak for its own membership — nearly half of whom are "forced followers" of the union bosses because in non-Right to Work states they must either fork over dues to the union or be fired under compulsory union shop contracts.

A recent poll by the Opinion Research Corp. clearly underscores why representatives of the 61,000,000 are needed. It showed that two of three members of union families rate their union leaders' performance negatively, both in advancing the interest of union members and in meeting their public responsibilities.

Now these same officials will be appointed as spokesmen for "labor" to the Pay Board. And they can be expected to use that position to further fasten the coils of compulsory unionism around the nation's working men and women — as they did during World War II when compulsory unionism grew nearly four-fold under similar circumstances!

These self-seeking union representatives should not be permitted to repeat that shoddy performance.

For "labor" is not one — or a few — powerful union officials. Nor is "labor" any one group of unions. Nor is "labor" the local AFL-CIO official. "Labor" is all Americans gainfully employed — the total working force of the nation.

Let union officials represent the 19,000,000 members — conscripted and otherwise — they collect dues from; but let the "labor" portion of the tripartite Pay Board reflect the voice of the 61,000,000 as well.

The interests of justice and equity for American workers demands it.

ONE MAN, ONE VOTE HOUSE

The commissioners of the Missouri Supreme Court have drawn up something close to a model plan for one man, one vote House districts, and the inevitable result will be lamentations from some House members. We shed no tears for them.

One of the reasons the court commissioners had to undertake this unsought task was that the bipartisan redistricting commission was under constant pressure from legislators who wanted to salvage their present districts. Finally, the 10 Republicans rejected a highly tentative plan offered by the 10 Democrats on the commission—the Republicans congratulating one another afterward as if they had won a major political victory.

Perhaps they did, but no one can be sure until all the boundaries of all the 163 new House districts are evaluated. The court commissioners were not interested in legislative maneuvering and political objectives. Their goal was to draw districts as nearly equal in population as was possible, and also as compact as practicable. They worked in comparative secrecy.

In terms of the one man, one vote principle the results were remarkable. No district varies by more than 1.3 per cent from the average or ideal figure for equal population, and 81 districts are slightly above the ideal, while 81 are slightly below it. By putting equal representation first, the commissioners were willing to let the politcal chips fall where they would, and those who sought partisan advantage are left to pick them up.

If it is said that the 1971 redistricting represents a partial failure of the bipartisan commission system, the answer is that while the commission failed, for once, the system provides for an automatic solution at the court level. In the end, it did work.

The contrast is plain with the faulty process of letting legislators themselves arrange redistricting. The Legislature made such a mess of congressional apportionment that the plan has had to be forced to court by a citizen's suit. Congressional districts ought to be established in the future as House and Senate districts are. —Post-Dispatch.

LOOK MAGAZINE, one of the biggest circulation weeklies in the nation, will cease publication on October 19. Two reasons were given, first excessive postage, and secondly, lack of advertising revenue. When as good a magazine as Look with circulation far into the millions, can't keep going, it strikes a bit of fear into other media. Our government should be trying to do something about the mail situation, for not only is the price higher than ever in history, but also slower. A letter from Ed Rutter in New Jersey, to the Democrat editor, is typical of what we constantly hear. "We always get our paper on Tuesday. We did not receive the two papers previous to Sept. 8th." Congressman Bill Hungate recently made a speech before the Post Office Committee in which he said he did not get the papers from his home district until they were two and three weeks late.——SHelbina Democrat.

A WASTED EFFORT

Several months ago, a large West Coast brewery launched a cleanup project of near monumental proportions. It organized litter removal squads and set them to work picking up all the trash along one of the scenic highways stretching from Portland, Oregon, to the Pacific Coast, some 70 or 80 miles away. Arrangements were made for fleets of trucks to haul off the garbage as it was gathered from the road and adjacent right-of-way. Tons and tons of unsightly trash were removed, and one of the state's scenic highways was restored to its original beauty. But what happened? Drive along this highway today,and you will find the same old dreary isle of trash and garbage—cartons of pop and beer cans, paper plates, half-eaten sandwiches and all the refuse of a slovenly people.

When we talk about improving the environment, one cannot help wondering just what we mean. To what avail is clean air or water to people who have no sense of personal responsibility toward holding up their end of the job of keeping our earth a fit place on which to live. Cleaning up a highway was a good publicity stunt for a beer company. But, it appears to have been a wasted effort in a country whose people seem to want to delegate all responsibility for preserving the environment to government, industry and the other fellow.

NO COMPROMISE WITH COMMUNISM

Recently a group of Senators and Congressmen issued a statement calling for keeping Free China in the United Nations. The statement carefully avoided the issue of whether Red China should be admitted to the U. N. along with Taiwan.

But at a press conference called to discuss the statement, spokesmen for the signers left the impression that they might be willing to see Peking in the U. N. so long as Free China were not expelled. At this, two Congressmen, John Schmitz of California and John Rarick of Louisiana, walked out of the press conference, declaring that they could not support any compromise on this issue and that they absolutely opposed the admission of Communist China to the U.N.

Although the Congressmen who supported the position taken at the press conference did so with the best of intentions, they must realize that there can be no compromise with Communism. If Red China is admitted to the U.N. on an equal basis with Free China, it would be tantamount to admitting that a government which, in the words of Congressman Schmitz," is keeping 800 million people in bondage" is of equal status with the legitimate Chinese government. Free China could then be more easily expelled later.

A "two Chinas" policy is a retreat from a principled anti-Communitst stand. As such, it would be a victory for the Communists, who are often willing to compromise so long as the result leaves them better off than before. Two constructive Congressmen, one a Republican and the other a Democrat, have taken the lead in refusing to comprise with Communism. Their colleagues in Congress should follow their example. HLH

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — If you think all it takes to marry off a daughter is money, you're wrong.

You also need a groom, and he's got to be at the wedding—which is where I ran into problems.

To get the whole happy expensive mess into proper focus we turn back to last year after my miss and her fella, senior classmates at Temple University, got engaged and set the date.

He had just joined the Army Reserves and was awaiting callup for five months of active duty, hoping to time it to make the wedding, finish some courses for a B.A. degree and start law school.

Weeks passed, then months, but no Army orders.

Time was critical. Too late an Army reporting date would mean my prospective son-inlaw would miss classes and the wedding date.

"You know people," my worried wife said. "Call the Army, call your senator, call anybody."

I already had, zeroing in on the Defense Department and its military red tape through Pennsylvania's two U.S. senators, Hugh Scott and Richard Schweiker. After all, the young man wasn't trying to get out of the Army, he was trying to get in and having no luck.

My wife was getting frantic, and so was my daughter. The caterer, the florist, the photographer and the orchestra leader also might have been concerned if they knew the dilemma and how it might cut them out of a big payoff in a cancellation or elopement.

About this time a year ago, President Nixon was on the election trail and planning a quick Pennsylvania stopover at Lancaster to plug a candidate for governor who never made it. I took the missus along on the assignment hoping to get her mind off a wedding still

Good thinking? Well . . . not exactly the way it was orginally figured. Women just won't listen.

When the President, after his speech, moved past newsmen on the way to the White House helicopter, my wife stuck out a hand to say hello, and Nixon grabbed it. She wouldn't let go.

"Mr. President, can you help a young man get called to active duty in the Army?" she asked—a determined mother, cool, calm and collected.

That demolished me, usually cool, calm and collected.

"Who is this young man?" Nixon asked.

"The man my daughter is going to marry," which intrigued the President even more and increased my embarrassment as he pursued the topic.

My wife explained the Army delay and finalized her concern with a touch of diplomacy: "You know how it is with daughters."

Nodding (no kidding) the President suggested she write to his military aide, which she did. And I kept prodding my senators, who kept prodding the Pentagon, and the orders finally came—on time. And nobody took any credit because I'm certain the Army did it all by itself.

So now you think everyone lived happily ever after? Not quite.

First, the Army lost the young man's travel orders. Then he had to sweat out a two-week leave scheduled in the middle of his training, which he didn't want, and finally was able to stay on duty.

Finally he finished training and came home a week before he had to answer wedding bells.

Okay? Not okay. My daughter cried because the Army cut her guy's hair too short.

"Sorry," I said, "the President can't do a thing

Washington-Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON: — President Nixon has decided to shun the traditional political barnstorming next year and to campaign for re-election by actively attending to the nation's affairs.

He will make appearances around the country and speak to the nation on the television networks. But he intends to soft-pedal the political rhetoric, maintain the dignity of his office and go about his presidential duties.

Those who know Richard Nixon suspect he may have difficulty restraining himself when the campaign heats up. But it is now his intention to avoid the rock 'em sock 'em politics of past Nixon campaigns.

Of course, he will overlook no opportunity to drive home the idea that he is a peace-and-prosperity President. But he hopes to dramatize this more by presidential activity than political campaigning.

Before the 1972 election, he expects to end the American combat role in Vietnam, to improve relations with both Peking and Moscow and to get the economy booming again.

All the while, Nixon will keep the voters constantly aware of the peace-and-prosperity theme by making dramatic new moves and announcements. If he goes before the cameras too often, he fears, the public might get tired of his face.

The President was barnstorming in California on the eve of the 1970 election. He left the voters with the impression of a shrill, partisan President. This is a mistake he doesn't intend to repeat in 1972. The only campaign trail he will take next year will be the high road.

Footnote: The President will vote in California. Intimates say he is eager to win the state, not only because it has the most electors but because he seeks vindication over being rejected for governor in 1962. These are the reasons he is bringing the Republican convention to California. But heavy unemployment in the aerospace industry, which has caused recession in some sections of the state, could give him trouble.

UN AND DRUGS

A still-secret congressional report lays much of the blame for the burgeoning international narcotics trade squarely in the lap of the United Nations.

The report, prepared for the House Foreign Affairs Committee, is based upon an 11-nation narcotics investigation conducted last spring by Rep. Seymour Halpern, R-N.Y. It appears to be one of the most comprehensive documents ever put together about the international narcotics crisis.

"If the United States and the other victim countries are ever to be successful in elininating the scourge of heroin addiction within their own shores," Halpern writes in the report, "they must move beyond unilateral and bilateral controls; there is no way that just one or two countries on their own can handle the problem."

The obvious solution would be for the United Nations to step in and coordinate a worldwide effort to squelch the illegal dope trade. The basic bureaucratic structures, rules and regulations already exist. It is just a matter of putting some teeth in them.

The UN, however, has reneged on its responsibilities. Says Halpern: "World organizations, and the United Nations in particular, have failed in their responsibilities to meet the ever mounting crisis in international narcotics trade."

The UN's International Narcotics Control Board "should be taking the lead in calling for new or amended treaty agreements," Halpern continues, "but it has not done so. It simply is not keeping pace with developments on the international drug scene, and has been prone to maintain a 'live and let live' policy, rather than offend any member nation. . .

"The painful but obvious conclusion we can draw..." says Halpern, "is that United Nations effectiveness in narcotic traffic and control is virtually negligible."

The greatest problem the UN faces, Halpern reports, "is the reluctance of member nations to yield their jurisdiction in legislative and administrative fields to international bodies...."

LONG WAIT

Way back on June 30, 1969, Sgt. James V. King of McClellan Air Force Base, Calif., submitted a formal suggestion that airmen working around radiation hazards such as radar and other microwave equipment be given special cautionary indoctrination.

King pointed to studies showing that overexposure causes "permanent and incurable" damage such as cataracts. The Air Force notified King: "you will be informed when action is taken."

For more than two years, King waited. "Finally, on Sept. 24, 1971, the Air Force told him his idea had been tentatively approved, adding: "You will be kept informed of the progress made."

Meanwhile, as the Air Force dawdles, hundreds of airmen are being exposed to

Inside Labor

INSIDE LABOR: Smashing the Mafia: Special Federal anti-racketeering Labor task force uncovering Mob's control of Pension millions

NEW YORK-- One witty Federal agent calls the Justice Department's anti-racketeering headquarters here the "Nutcracker suite" The strike force, biggest in the nation, has the underworld in a pincer and is squeezing the Mafia's own investment and labor specialists so hard that the "combine" is screaming to its political allies for protection.

On one side the pressure is from Operation Financier, code name of Strike Force 18 centered in Washington but with deep interest in the banking routes taken by the underworld's money wizard Meyer Lansky to the anonymous cash pools in Switzerland. Israeli authorities have dispatched solemn word that Lansky will be deported from Tel Aviv--and the special agents here await him with grim pleasure. He may not talk. But the probers will get their answers from the questions he refuses to answer.

The rest will come from Operation Financier strike force chief Bob Campbell who is "grand jurying" in Las Vegas.

Meanwhile, needled by the other side of the pincer are the Mafia's infiltrators of small but powerful unions such as some of those with ties to Johnny Dio's crime combine at Kennedy Airport.

The big, deeply coordinated strike force here headed by Dan Hollman, however, seeks far more than exposure or the indictment of men linked to the notorious air freight racket. Big as it is, it still doesn't match what potentially could affect billions of dollars in investments--the hundreds of pension funds administered by glue-fingered officials of dummy unions, strategically placed locals of giant labor affilitates and garden-type muscle outfits.

The peel-off from these pension funds could retire many a burgeoning nation's national debt. There are fake investments. There are high-priced lawyers, relatives or friends. There are special counsellors, actuaries, friendly real estate advisers, weird Florida investments and, of course, finders fees for those who need not look further than their own circle for multi-million dollar loans.

Just in passing, there is Allen Dorfman, intimate of Jimmy Hoffa. He is the son of Hoffa's late buddy, Paul Dorfman, who, it might intrigue you, seized the Chicago Waste Handlers Union from one Jack Ruby long, long ago. Dim history has it that this seizure sent Ruby running for Dallas and grim immortality. Dorfman was tough and helped his son build a complex of insurance companies. Now Allen is scheduled to stand trial here on Nov. 15 before Judge Gurfein.

He is charged with receiving a $55,000 kickback on a loan application made to the Teamsters Central States pension fund office by a North Carolina textile comapny.

The trial will tell its own story. What has not yet been reported is the creation of the special organized crime labor unit which Hollman has put into action here in what is called the Southern District (reaching into upper New York state) and in the Eastern District over the river in Brooklyn and points east.

Watch this task force. It is the pattern for action in virtually every one of the 17 cities containing smaller strike forces.

It wasn't always so. Until recently this area-- capital of the powerful Mafia global network--had but one labor agent.

Hollman looked at his task force-- on which, theoretically sit FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover and Attorney General John Mitchell. But he had only one labor racket expert. Just one to handle hundreds of locals with more power than the big labor movement itself. So Hollman went down to see "the A.G." And the New York crime fighter made some real brownie points: The mob's money and power grabs are massive here. From it flow command decisions to the Mafia everywhere.

In a few months the labor specialists began pouring in. Today Hollman has 20 labor experts. At least 13 of them operate across New York. The other seven cover Brooklyn and Long Island where more Mafia chiefs reside than on Mediterranean islands.

There is Joe Colombo, still in the coma into which an executioner's bullet sent him last June 28. Much of a Mafia chief now he isn't, which is exactly what the Mafia's nine-man National Commission wanted. That was the gang which could shoot straight, Jimmy.

Brooklyn too, is what Carlo Gambino, boss of all bosses, calls home. And Long Island is where Carmine Tramanti, acting boss of the Old Luchese crowd lives. And they do have influence in unions which dominate hundreds of millions of dollars worth of commerce and industry and construction.

Mistake it not. Those crime syndicates and their chiefs are not provincials. They reach right across the country into Canada, through Buffalo where the mob is not getting nearly the investigative attention it should get in view of the heavy mob concentration there, and on out to the west.

Just the other day, Mitchell reported that more than 1,400 organized crime and gambling figures were convicted in the past three fiscal years. And that 2,100 more are being prosecuted. And 123 "high echelon" mob figures have been convicted in his period. Well, many of them are from this capital of Mafia finance, organized crime financial wizards and labor rackets.

That nutcracker suite gives off a mighty fine tune. A little public applause won't hurt the performers.

Kissinger Returns To U.S.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger returned to the United States today after a trip to Peking.

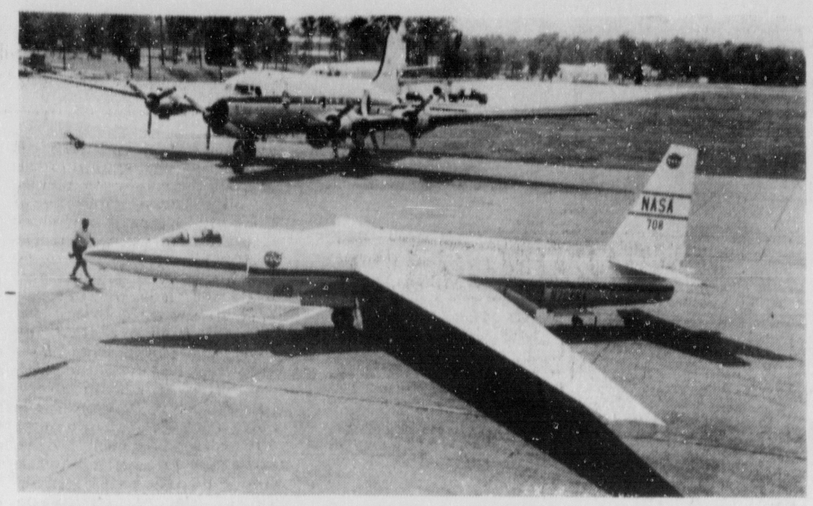
He and his party flew on to Washington, after their Boeing 707 was refuled, to report to President Nixon on arrangements made for the forthcoming presidential visit to mainland China.

A spokesman for Kissinger's group said the flight from Shanghai to Anchorage was the first such flight from mainland China to the United States since before World War II.

The Yugoslav news agency Tanjug had reported Kissinger's departure from the Chinese capital.

The Tanjug correspondent in Peking said that the extension of Kissinger's stay there for two extra days aroused much speculation and was also linked by observers to the vote on Chinese representation in the United Nations.

The report said there were no comments in Peking on the outcome of the vote.



REMEMBER THE U-2? The slim-winged, high-flying reconnaissance plane that yielded priceless intelligence on Soviet military and industrial activities before figuring in the international incident that saw a 1960 Big Four summit shot down along with one of the planes is still flying. Although still employed in intelligence gathering to some extent, emphasis today is on science. The U-2 in foreground at Wallops Island, Va., is participating in testing for the Earth Resources Technology Satellite scheduled for launch in 1972. The plane makes passes over test sites at 65,000 feet every 18 days, making photographs to simulate the satellite's planned cycle.

Weekend Traffic Toll In State Reaches 15

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The death of a 74-year-old Washington, Mo., man Monday brought the state's traffic fatality toll to 15 for the 78-hour Veterans Day weekend.

Lewis G. Ballmann, of Cedar Crest Manor Nursing Home, was pronounced dead on arrival at a Washington hospital after the car he was riding in collided with another at the intersection of Route 100 and Route V near Washington.

The highway patrol reported three fatalities Friday night, nine Saturday and two Sunday.

The Sunday victims were 10year-old Denise Howell of Kansas City, a passenger in a car that ran into an Interstate 70 median near St. Peters, and 25year-old George Wessels of St. Louis, killed in a head-on collision in South St. Louis earlier in the day.

The patrol's fatality list for Saturday:

John Lee Orten, 73, and his wife, Martha, 72, in a two-car crash at the junction of Route W and Highway 67 in St. Francis County.

Mrs. Emma Johnson, 42, Cohokia, Ill., in a two-car accident on Highway 155 in Pemiscott County just north of the Arkansas line.

Paul Peters, 37, Danville, Ill.; M.A. Sparks, 54, and his 53-year-old wife, Alice, both of Tarkio, Mo., in a two-car crash on U.S. 59 seven miles north of Tarkio.

Paul J. Sturn, 59, Alumnniker, Spain, in a head-on collision on U.S. 66 near Washington, Mo.

Terry A. Little, 27, New Haven, Mo., passenger in a car that swerved off a road north of Hermann.

Brian Rice, 23, Hazelwood, Mo., who died in a one-car accident on Interstate 270 in St. Louis County.

Killed Friday were 15-yearold Markie Baker and 52-yearold Oscar Baker, both of St. Louis, in a two-car crash in that city, and 19-year-old Donnie Ray Brashears, Clinton, Mo., when his car ran off a gravel road near Clinton.

State Refuses To Pay For Babysitting

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The state of Missouri won't pay for babysitting expenses.

John C. Vaughn, state comptroller, said today Mrs. Hugh Sprague submitted a request for repayment of $210 in babysitting expenses while she served on the State House Redistricting Commission last summer.

She said that was her biggest expense as a commissioner. She is the wife of Deputy State Auditor Hugh Sprague, formerly of St. Joseph.

Vaughn said it was a "first" in his experience as comptroller.

Senate War Critics Renew Drive To Force Withdrawal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate's war critics are launching the next step in their drive to force U.S. withdrawal from Indochina amid indications the issue could become the single biggest stumbling block to adjournment of Congress by Dec. 1.

The battle this time revolves around an amendment to the $3.2 billion foreign aid authorization bill that calls for withdrawal of U.S. troops in six months. It also bars spending on U.S. military activity in Indochina except for withdrawal and protecting withdrawing forces from "imminent danger."

Debate on the bill starts today.

This amendment, unlike others, has been included in the aid bill by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Therefore, the burden will be on President Nixon's backers to remove or delete it.

The antiwar forces on the Foreign Relations panel have included a number of other amendments, including a $250 million ceiling on U.S. activities in Cambodia similar to the $350 million limit on American activities in Laos voted in the military procurement bill last month.

Committee members say they are confident the Senate will uphold the dual antiwar amendment. Approval of the fund cutoff provision by Sens. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., and Frank Church, D-Idaho, would make it the first time the Senate has ever cut off money for the war.

Twice in recent months the Senate has voted to set a deadline on U.S. operations in Indochina, calling 61 to 38 last June for a nine-month deadline and 57 to 38 last month for a six-month deadline.

The first rider was watered down by Senate-House conferees on the draft extension bill, and the second one appears likely to suffer the same fate when conferees return to work on the $21.3 billion military procurement bill.

But the margin of defeat in the House—215 to 193 the last time—has been steadily narrowing, and the Senate's war critics hope that one of these times, possibly on the foreign aid measure, the House will finally go along.

Another factor in debate over the bill may be President Nixon's troop withdrawal announcement Nov. 15. Pentagon sources have said he might schedule a total withdrawal by July, but the White House has not indicated the magnitude of the announcement.

Besides the foreign aid authorization, and the later appropriations bill, the Senate will have to pass a $70 billion-plus defense appropriations bill before it can conclude the session.

Congressional leaders are determined to end the present session by Dec. 1, and all indications are that resolution of the war issue may determine how successful they are.

Wounded Fugitive Stays In Hiding

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A wounded gunman whom police say has taken four hostages since Thursday afternoon's robbery of a St. Louis savings and loan office stayed out of sight Monday.

Police said they still are working on the belief the gunman is holding a St. Louis County man as his fourth hostage.

John L. Dorrell III, of Florissant, Mo., has been missing since Saturday morning. His wife told authorities Dorrell called her Sunday afternoon and said he was being held by the man sought by police and the FBI.

Federal complaints charging armed robbery and kidanping have bee issued against James Leroy Cochran, 36, of St. Louis.

Police continued to scour the metropolitan area for Dorrell's car, a red, 1970 Plymouth with a luggage rack on top.

Three other hostages taken by Cochran were released unharmed. One, a teacher at Northwest High School, was held briefly Thursday afternoon as Cochran escaped from police shortly after the robbery. The second hostage was held with 13 others at his house near the high school, forced to drive Cochran to the Granite City, Ill., area Thursday night, then released. The third, a Boonville, Mo., woman, was driven by Cochran from her home to Kansas City and back to St. Louis Friday.

Dorrell's wife said her husband told her not to worry when he called her Sunday. "I was very happy to know that he was at least alive," she said.

Police said Cochran was wounded in the arm Thursday during an exchange of gunfire with them after the robbery.

Authorities said a car belonging to Cochran's acquaintance Marilyn Oliver, 21, was used in the robbery. Police found the woman's car—but she has not been seen since a weekago.

Two men tookpart in the Thursday holdup of the Cass Federal Savings & Loan Association. One of the men was wounded and arrested shortly after the holdup. Police recovered about $10,000 taken by the armed pair.

Bond Calls For Better Collections

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "I am firmly conviced that better collection procedures could increase the amount of tax dollars collected by the state," State Auditor Christopher "Kit" Bond said today.

He made the assertion in a speech prepared for a meeting of the St. Louis Electrical Board of Trade.

"One example," he said, "is the intangible tax unit of the Department of Revenue." There procedural changes were made that increased collections by 59 per cent.

"I personally doubt that such a major increase could be achieved in other areas," Bond said, "but in our audit of the sales tax unit we did find many activities on which the Department of Revenue could and should be doing a better job in collecting delinquent taxes. They also need to adopt procedures to insure that taxpayers owing a tax do pay it.

"If the procedures we recommended were put into effect, Missouri could collect millions of dollars more in sales taxes under existing laws."

He said he found too much delay in the collection of taxes and reporting it as revenue.

"Perhaps these transactions and the delays in reporting revenue have added to the confusion over Missouri's revenue picture...

"But they do not justify the assumption that Missouri has hundreds of millions of dollars hidden somewhere. To date, our examinations have not shown any cases where tax revenue paid to Missouri has been diverted to other uses."

Ann Landers

Reader Discovers Poem About Ann

Dear Ann Landers: Ogden Nash died recently. He was one of my favorite poets. I ran across a poem he wrote about you. It was in Diner's Magazine. Please print it, Ann. Here it is:

But I Could Not Love Thee,Ann, So Much, Loved I Not Honore More

Some find the world in a grain of sand, I in the correspondence of Ann Landers.

I eavesdrop unabashed as she spoons out her acerb sauce with even hand on lachrymose geese and truculent ganders.

Her desk is positively formicating, which means swarming with moving beings, although I might well employ the other word that sounds like unto it.

Because her mail consists mostly of letters from those embittered ones who have discovered about illicit sex that often there are more headaches than fun to it.

A present-day Emma Lazarus, she cries Give me your huddled problems, the wretched refuse of your wrongs, unwrap for me your festering sores and stigmas;

Your poison is my meat, be it alcoholism, infidelity, frigidity, satyriasis, pre-marital pregnancy or borborygmus.

Yes, if anyone's Gordian love-knot requires a blade more cutting than Alexander's,

Let them call on Ann Landers.

No pussy-footer she, no purveyor of admonitions soothing or polite;

It's tell the bum to jump in the lake, tell the old bag to go fly a kite.

If Anne of Cleves would have written to Ann Landers

I bet Henry would have though twice before calling her the mare of Flanders.

From a human comedy as varied as Balzac's I choose for you one exerpt, the ultimate in wails of poignant woe,

The plaint of a teen-ager who doubted the affection of her boy friend because the only compliment he ever paid her was You sweat less than any fat girl I know.

Dear Friend: Thank you so much for sending on that delightful poem. I was deeply moved that Ogden Nash selected my column as a subject for his verse. I was not aware that he was a reader. When I read of his death in May I regretted that I never had the pleasure of meeting him. He was one of my favorites, too. The opening line of his poem is evidence that he understood what my column is all about and it pleases me immensely.

The Ogden Nash poem which I have repeated most often is this one:

When you hit the ketchup bottle
None comes out
And then a lottle and this one----
Breakfast foods grow odder and odder;
It's a wise child who knows his fodder.

Unsure of yourself on dates? What's right? What's wrong? Should you? Shouldn't you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Dating Do's and Don't," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Medical Treatment For Animals Is Specialized

ST. LOUIS — The United States is going to the dogs. And cats are getting their share, too!

Latest estimates indicate there are more than 25 million dogs in the U. S., with the cat population figured even higher. Equated to the human population, this means there's one dog or cat for every four Americans.

Coping with the rising health needs of this army of domestic pets is a corps of 27,000 highly trained veterinarians, many of whom now limit their practices to certain specialities, much as physicians do with human ailments.

It's not uncommon today to find veterinarians specializing in radiology, opthamology, and orthopedic surgery. Even the family physician doesn't practice dentistry, but this isn't too unusual for the typical veterinarian; he may use ultrasonic waves to remove tartar from his patients's teeth.

A lrelatively new career field in veterinary medicine is the "animal technician". Trained at the junior college level, as are dental hygienists, graduates are qualified to assist in surgery, give injections, and perform a variety of tests for the busy veterinarian.

Just as man is living longer today, due mostly to an improved diet and better medical care, so are his pets. Like most infants, pets receive early medical attention. Most veterinarians recommend that puppies and kittens, for instance, receive their first distemper shots at 12 weeks of age, followed by a second shot three weeks later. Rabies vaccinations are given at six months, with a booster shot annually. The determining factor for a pet's shots is the pet's age, not the time of year.

Among the sophisticated innovations in the treatment of family pets is a specialized payment/ scheduling program. Many veterinarians -- and pet shops, too -- are accepting multi-purpose charge cards like a bank card to make it easy for the attentive owner to obtain all the services his pet needs. The vet can then recommend that the owner use his itemized statement from Master Charge, for instance, to keep track of his pet's treatment, and to schedule future appointments. By accepting the credit card, the veterinarian also avoids awkward payment negotiations during an emergency.

Like the regular M.D.'s, veterinarians are coming aware that the science of medical treatment is a "full-service" operation.

Pumpkins Are Also Good For Feasting

It's time for cider and doughnuts, witches, goblins and, of course, jack-o-'lanterns. Bright orange pumpkins are a welcome symbol of harvest. Halloween and fun. Both children and adults enjoy trying their artistic hand at carving their own jack-o'-lantern.

But many people forget that they are also a delicious vegetable. This fall, try serving fresh pumpkins.

First, you should know how to choose the pumpkin. Here are some tips for buying pumpkins from the United States Department of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service. Although there are no USDA grade standards specifically for pumpkins, the same general buying criteria for winter squash apply to them.

They should be well matured, not broken or cracked; free from soft spots and excessive scarring; and they should be clean.

Pumpkins should have a rich, orange color.

Most varieties of pumpkins do not keep as well as hardshelled or winter squash. They may be kept for 2 to 3 months, but should be stored in a cool, dry place (50-55 degrees). All winter squash should be well matured, carefully handled and free from injury or decay when put in storage.

Pumpkins provide the makings of spicy pumpkin pie, bread, muffins, puddings and custards. Small pumpkins may be stuffed with meat, vegetables or seafood. A delicious soup can be made from pumpkin mixed with pureed carrots, sliced onions and leeks, chopped celery and parsley. It's also good mashed and seasoned with butter and cinnamon or baked and glazed with honey.

Pumpkin can be prepared in the same as other winter squashes, i.e., banana, Hubbard, acorn or Danish. To boil pumpkin, quarter it and remove the rind. Cook, covered in a small amount of lightly salted boiling water, 25-30 minutes or until tender. Since pumpkins are a watery vegetable, a large amount of cooking water is undesirable. When cooked, drain and mash. To use in recipes calling for canned pumpkin, place mashed pumpkin in a strainer and let drain about 30 minutes to remove excess liquid (or puree).

To bake pumpkin, simply wash and cut into servings size portions. Remove seeds and strings. Place in a pan, shell side up, and bake in a 325 degree oven for 1 hour or more until fork tender. During the last 15 minutes, turn flesh side up and brush with butter or a glaze, if desired. Or, scoop the pulp from the shell and mash.

To serve as a vegetable, allow about one-half pound of fresh pumpkin per person.

Women May Be Drafted If Equal Rights Becomes Law

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., doesn't care if women are bartenders or wrestlers, but he doesn't want them drafted or using men's restrooms.

And, if an amendment to the U.S. Constitution guaranteeing equal rights for women becomes law, Ervin says, those things and more will have to be sanctioned by courts that are merely living up to the Constitution.

Supporters of the amendment say Ervin is wrong.

Ervin, third-ranking Democrat on the Senate Judiciary Committee and architect of moves that killed the measure a year ago, is plotting new tactics for the 1972 renewal of the battle.

Ervin has promised Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield he won't block action on the amendment in Sen. Birch Bayh's constitutional amendments subcommittee. In return, Ervin has been guaranteed that the panel will not even bring it up for consideration until after Congress returns from a Christmas recess.

Meanwhile, Ervin will try to persuade others on Bayh's subcommittee and the full Judiciary Committee, of the constitutional amendment's "shortcomings" and try to enlist their aid in adding a few so-called corrective amendments.

Bayh's forces say Ervin's changes would nullify the measure's effect.

"We know Ervin's game," said one staff aide to Bayh's subcommittee. "He wants to give the courts enough of a loophole to drive a Mack truck through the whole purpose of the thing."

One move, Ervin said, will be to seek approval of a change nullifying the constitutional amendment's application where there are physiological or functional differences between men and women.

Ervin said he will then push for addition of language that would exempt women from the military draft, preserve their privacy and other protections.

But, Ervin said, "What it gets down to is equal employment opportunities." He said most women would be happy with equal pay for performing equal work and his changes, he contends, would provide for that.

"It would allow women to be bartenders (where it is now outlawed) and still let them be wrestlers if they want," he added.

Ervin said in case the Judiciary Committee rejects his changes, he hopes to line up enough support to kill the amendment on the Senate floor. Two-thirds approval is required for a constitutional amendment.

Color Expresses Mood

MINNEAPOLIS — When you get angry do you "see red?" And do you "feel blue" when things aren't going right?

Color is often used to express or describe moods. But color has a far more important function, according to a study by the Family Economics Bureau of Northwestern National Life Insurance Co. Color is a powerful force in determing moods, temperament and behaviour.

Color is part of life, yet most people are not aware of the influence it exerts. You may not be conscious of the colors around you, but they do things to you, whether you like it or not. Psychologists have found that 90% of our actions are prompted by emotion and only 10% by reason.

Reactions to color are an individual thing, yet there is enough similarity among people to be able to classify personality traits in terms of color, reports the Family Economics Bureau. Extroverts tend to favor bright, warm colors; introverts like subdued, cool colors.

Red goes with people who have a vital, if not a violent interest in the world. They are quick to judge, quick to act and they live eventful lives of ups and downs. A preference for yellow reveals intellectual extremes -- superior mental ability or retarded mentality.

Lovers of green, frequently social in nature, try to have the good things in life and to be well regarded by others. Blue-green people have difficulty in getting along with others and are frequently divorced.

A blue person tries to lead a steady life, seldom acting on impluse or taking chances. Navy blue devotees are the ultimate in conservatism.

Auto makers have found a key to personality in the color of the car a person drives. People who want to tell the world they are serious and responsible buy dark colored cars. Middle-of -the-roaders favor light colors.

A person who wants to express showiness and to assert his individualism goes for the two-tone and bright shades. One who wants to assume high or unusual status goes for the very bright colors, such as yellow and red.

Most people don't use reason when choosing the color of their car. Yellow cars are not big sellers, although because of their high visibility, they would be the safest color car to drive. Even though the drab and dark colors -- black, grey, beige and navy -- are far more likely to be involved in an accident, most people still seem to prefer them.

* * *

Medical tests show that blood pressure and respiration rates go up when a person is exposed to bright red color and decrease when under the influence of blues. There is more tension and excitement with red, while blue brings about a greater feeling of well-being and sense of calm. This makes soft blues and greens good colors for hospital rooms. Blue has also been found to be conducive to sleep and helpful in cases of insomnia.

The bright, warm colors -- red, orange and yellow -- provide ideal settings for vigorous, muscular tasks. The cool, tranquil blues and greens are especially suitable for rooms where mental concentration is important.

A fast-food restaurant or coffee shop, anxious for a quick turnover of customers is apt to be decorated in bright reds and yellows, with lots of light. In a restaurant where they would like to have you dawdle over dinner and drinks, the decor is usually soft and cool, with dim lighting.

Color can make you feel warm or cool. In one office, employees complained that an air-conditioned lounge, painted blue and grey, was too cold. The management painted the room brown and orange, but did nothing to change the temperature. There were no more complaints from employees of freezing!

Color also gives an indication of weight. Factory employees complained that the black boxes they used to tote parts were too heavy. A color-knowledgeable engineer had the boxes painted light blue and everyone was happy they were so much lighter!

Geographic, national, cultural and economic factors all play a part in color preference and reactions to color, according to Northwestern National Life. Where the sun is bright and abundant, people like their colors to be strong, rich and brilliant. When sunlight is more scarce, softer, dullers colors are preferred, especially the blues and greens. Latin people like reds -- Nordic people lean to the blues and greens. New Englanders like more conservative colors than Californians.

People seem to be particularly sensitive about the color of food. The acceptance of almost any food is determined by its color. For example, if butter is too white, it resembles lard; if too yellow, it appears rancid.

Heart Attack Killed Gridder

DETROIT (AP) — While football cannot be blamed for the heart attack which killed Detroit Lion Chuck Hughes, a team physician said Monday he would have advised Hughes to quit had he known the wide receiver suffered from a disease of the arteries.

Dr. Edward Guise, who announced the findings of an autopsy performed on Hughes by the Wayne County medical examiner, said the 28-year-old player suffered from hardening of the arteries which had cut off 70 per cent of his circulation.

Guise said that Hughes died when a blood clot blocked the remaining flow of blood to his heart. For all practical purposes, Guise said, Hughes died on the field where he fell in the closing seconds of the Lions Sunday game with the Bears at Tiger Stadium.

Guise and Dr. Richard Thompson, another team physician, said Hughes' condition worsened in any situation—including football—which caused him stress, physical or emotional.

Thompson said the disease would have killed Hughes eventually.

The doctors said that Hughes' collision with two Bears players three plays prior to his collapse did not precipitate the heart attack "except that it may have provided more stress."

It is also undetermined whether Hughes' death is related to a Sept. 4 pre-season game injury which led the player to complain of abdominal pains. A complete checkup—including cardiogram and arteriogram—following his injury failed to reveal any heart problems, Guise said.

However, Guise' said, it is "unfortunately very routine to miss symptoms of arteriosclerotic disease (artery hardening)." He said Hughes himself probably did not know he had the illness.

Hughes was not taking any medication or drugs, the doctors reported. All medication prescriptions for players must be signed either by Guise or Thompson.

Neither doctor felt additional equipment or faster transportation to the hospital would have saved Hughes. Extra equipment at the stadium would be more helpful to spectators, who regularly suffer heart attacks at games, than to players, they said.

Vikings Slow Colts

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP) — Ed Sharockman grimly remembered what he called the early days of the Minnesota Vikings—days when Johnny Unitas and the Baltimore Colts used to burn him with long passes.

But Sharockman, and such an inanimate object as the goal post, doused Baltimore's touchdown flames Monday night, 103, in a National Football League defensive struggle decided in the final minute.

Unitas, who came into the game with 10:35 to play and the Colts down 10-0, grazed the underside of the goalpost on a fourth down play from the Minnesota two with 42 seconds to play. Ed Hinton, the intended receiver, was open but couldn't get to the ball that fluttered short of his diving attempt.

That was one of six times Baltimore reached the doorstep but couldn't climb in except for Jim O'Brien's 40-yard field goal in the fourth period. Sharockman helped stop three of the efforts.

Sharockman, a 10-year veteran from Pittsburgh also intercepted a Morrall pass at the Baltimore 29 to set up Minnesota's touchdown—a two-yard run by Dave Osborn.

With the help of the goalpost, Sharockman and the Vikings strengthened their hold on the NFC Central Division lead with a 5-1 record. The loss dropped the Colts, who won the total offense battle 276-153, behind Miami in the AFC-East with a 4-2 record.

Unitas said he had to improvise on the goal post play, which could have set off a wild controversy that Hinton caught the ball. A ball deflecting the post is ruled a dead ball.

The Vikings' offense never really got untracked until Gary Cuozzo, a former Colt, passed 26 yards to Oscar Reed and 20 yards to Stu Voigt to set up a 32-yard field goal by Fred Cox in the third period.

O'Brien, who had kicked 11 straight regular season field goals without a miss, was off target for the first time in 1971 with a 45-yard attempt in the second period. A holding penalty also nullified a 36-yard Morrall to Hinton pass to the Viking two in the same quarter.

Hello! A couple of weeks ago Wanda Baugher informed me she was going to bury her bowling ball, and invited me to the burial. Her reason was, the first week of this season she bowled a pretty good series and since then not to well and she decided her ball had died. Last Tuesday night she told me she had dug it up for one more try, and she did bowl better. I'll wait until this week and if she still does pretty good I may bury mine and I'm pretty sure we'll have several others join us. This is a crazy game but it sure is lots of fun.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The UCLA Bruins have lost talented sophomore back Kermit Johnson, with an ankle fracture.

X-rays Monday showed Johnson broke his left ankle when he caught his foot in the turf lunging for an extra yard last Saturday night against California. Johnson will be out indefinitely, a team spokesman said.

SAN MATEO, Calif. (AP) — The third race Monday at Bay Meadows was the $4,000 National Association of Letter Carriers Purse. It was won by Bad Dawg.

The most home runs hit by both teams in a World Series is 17. The figure was reached twice, by the New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers in six games in 1953 and by the same two teams in 1955 in seven games.

YOU BE THE QUARTERBACK

By Paul (Bear) Bryant

Head Coach, University of Alabama

Compliments of

Wal—Mart Discount Center

Twice when you, the Green Bay quarterback, have needed yardage, you have thrown to your tight end downfield behind your flanker, who started the play wide to your right. The flanker decoy has caused problems for the Los Angeles zone defense with the tight end taking the ball between zones of coverage.

Now you have a third down and five on the Ram 37-yard line, 24 yards from the left sideline. Your best running play, a pitchout to your fullback with your flanker and tight end cross-blocking on the Rams' linebacker and cornerback, has made 19 yards in four tries. With two minutes left in the third quarter and the Rams leading 24-21, what will you call:

1. Pass to tight end behind flanker going deep?
2. Pass to flanker deep?
3. Pitchout to fullback?
4. Off-tackle play right to get ball in field goal position?

Answer

No. 2. Pass to flanker deep has chance to score. If Rams stay in zone, strong safety has responsibility for his deep left corner. But there's a real temptation for him to go with tight end, who runs with safety toward corner, then suddenly turns away from him. If safety comes up, flanker is home free. If Rams go to man-to-man defense, strong safety will cover tight end and flanker will be one-on-one with cornerback. Pitchout could get first down. Don't play for tie on this down in the third quarter.

Sooners Close In On Huskers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

... and the beat goes on—the beatings which Oklahoma hand out, bringing the Sooners ever closer to the top of The Associated Press college football poll.

Nebraska, however, pounding Oklahoma State 41-13, remained No. 1. The defending national champion Cornhuskers amassed 31 first-place votes and 1,044 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. A week ago they had 35 and 1,046 points.

But the Sooners, crushing Kansas State 75-28, edged within 20 points of the top, garnering 21 first-place votes and 1,020 points. Only two weeks ago they moved past Michigan into second and within 168 of the Cornhuskers. Last week they slashed the margin to 38, collecting 18 top votes and 1,008 points.

Michigan, Alabama and Auburn, each receiving one of the remaining first-place votes, stayed third, fourth and fifth.

Michigan, whipping Minnesota 35-7, received 883 points, Alabama got 788 after defeating Houston 34-20 and Auburn, a 3513 victor over Clemson, picked up 637.

The first big casualty was Notre Dame, tumbling from sixth to 12th following a 28-14 loss to SouthernCalifornia. That gave Penn State, Georgia and Arkansas a chance to take one step forward.

The sixth-place Nittany Lions clubbed Texas Christian 66-14, the Bulldogs silenced Kentucky 34-0 and the No. 8 Razorbacks bombed North Texas State 6021.

Also skidding badly was Stanford, falling seven slots to 17th after losing 24-23 to Washington State. Colorado, whipping Missouri 27-7, climbed two spaces to ninth and Ohio State did the same, gaining 10th as a result of a 31-6 walloping of Wisconsin.

Louisiana State took command of the Second Ten, moving up from 13th to 11th despite being idle last weekend. Notre Dame, Arizona State, Texas, Toledo, Tennessee, Stanford, Air Force, Florida State and Southern Cal rounded out the Top Twenty.

Florida State, blasting South Carolina 49-18, and Southern Cal were the only newcomers, replacing Purdue, a 21-7 loser to Illinois, and Duke, nipped 1514 by Navy.

Last week Colorado led the Second Ten, followed by Ohio State, LSU, Arizona State and Toledo tied for 14th, Texas., Purdue, Tennessee, Duke and Air Force.

All-America Nominees Include 8 Cornhuskers

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Eight members of the No. 1-ranked Nebraska football team and six of the No. 2-ranked Oklahoma squad were nominated today for the 1971 All-America team by The Associated Press District 5 football board.

The nominations from Nebraska are four offensive players, guard Dick Rupert, quarterback Jerry Tagge, I-back Jeff Kinney and slotback Johnny Rodgers, and four defensive players, safety Bill Kosch, tackle Larry Jacobson, middle guard Rich Glover and end Willie Harper.

The six Oklahmans are quarterback Jack Mildren, halfbacks Joe Wylie and Greg Pruitt, center Tom Brahaney, tight end Al Chandler and one player from the defensive unit, end Ray Hamilton.

Ten other players were nominated in the board's first action of the season, three from Iowa State, three from Kansas State, two from Oklahoma State and two from Kansas.

The other nominations:

Iowa State—Quarterback Dean Carlson, linebacker Keith Schroeder and defensive back Matt Blair.

Kansas State—Offensive guard Mo Latimore and linebackers Joe Colquitt and Keith Best.

Oklahoma State -Flanker Dick Graham and defensive back Tom Carraway.

Kansas—Center Mike McCoy and defensive end Eddie Sheats.

Tom Anderson, sports editor of the Grand Island, Neb., Daily Independent, said Rupert is "probably Nebraska's best All-America candidate. He is the best blocker in the Nebraska offensive line, has excellent speed and quickness in pulling and leading plays."

Of Mildren, Anderson said, "He is a different type of quarterback than Nebraska's Tagge but can probably direct Oklahoma's triple option offense better than any other in the nation."

The other major college District 5 board members are Joe McGuff, sports editor of the Kansas City Star; Fred White, sports director of WIBW, Topeka, Kan., and Bob Hurt, columnist of the Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City, Okla.

FRED HAPPE, 822 Harvard, shows off the head of an 800 -pound three - point Elk he killed on a hunting trip near Alamosa, Colo.

McCovey Gets Knee Operation

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — San Francisco Giants first baseman Willie McCovey was reported resting comfortably today after undergoing surgery at Stanford Medical Center to correct torn cartilage in his left knee.

Dr. Frederick Behling said Monday's surgery went "fine as expected" and that McCovey will be hospitalized about a week.

The knee had kept McCovey out of action from time to time in the past season, but he had postponed the operation until the season was completed.

Huskers Prepare For Buffs' Visit

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Nebraska Coach Bob Devaney feels that at long last the topranked Cornhuskers are going to find out how good they are Saturday when they battle ninth-ranked Colorado.

"We haven't faced a real top team in the country," Devaney said Monday during the Big Eight Conference weekly telephone briefing. "That's what we'll be doing against Colorado Saturday.

"I really don't know if we're overrated or not but if we're not ready for Colorado, it's going to be a long afternoon. If I knew any weaknesses about Colorado, I doubt if I would discuss them publicly."

Jerry Tagge, the Nebraska quaterback, agreed that Colorado is the "toughest we've played on our schdule to date. We'll be higher for Colorado than any other team this season. We're playing for all of the marbles right now."

Colorado Coach Eddie Croer said he planned to use both sophomore quarterbacsk, Ken Johnson and Joe Duenas, against the Cornhuskers and that he hoped Herb Orvis, injured for several weeks, would be ready 100 per cent to lead the Buffs' defense.

"To shut Nebraska off," Crowder said, "we have to play better than we have played all year. To stop Nebraska you have to have a great defense and play great."

Keith Schroeder, the Iowa State linebacker, said he was impressed "but now overawed" by Oklahoma and said bluntly, "I don't think anybody's going to paly defense against Oklahoma like we are."

Johnny Majors, the Iowa State coach who must send his team against second-ranked Oklahoma Saturday, predicted the Sooners "would have to have a bad, bad day for anybody to stop them, and I'm not a pessimist. I think you might have to score 40 points against Oklahoma to win.

"I think Oklahoma has the greatest running game the game has ever seen. Our offense will have to carry the big load. we'll go after them the best we can."

Majors was reminded that Oklahoma smother Kansas State 75-28 last week as if he needed reminding.

"With us playing them this week," Majors quipped, "I'm sure not going to ask Chuck Fairbanks if he runs up the score on teams."

Bulldog JV Tops Cape

Sikeston's junior varsity gridders rallied in the closing minutes Monday night at Public School stadium to trip Cape Central, 7-6.

Quarterback Richard Blankenship connected on a 15-yard pass to Billy Wake for a touchdown with a minute and half left in the game and Danny Nelson put the Bulldogs ahead with his extra point boot.

The Bengals scored early in the game.

SHS had drives stalled on the Tigers, four-yard line twice and once on the 15 before going over late in the contest to post the victory.

The Bulldog freshman suffered a 16-0 defeat at the hands of Caruthersville Saturday. CHS scored in the first and second quarter while the Bulldogs had drives stalled within 15 yards of theTigers goal line three times.

Coach George Hale's freshmen travel to Charleston Thursday and will be host to Perryville a week from Thursday in the season final.

Bank Credit Cards Breed Discontent

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Sixty million Americans are using bank credit cards to charge purchases at a rate of about $8 billion a year. But the profit bonanza envisioned by banks is yet to materialize and many merchants have become disenchanted.

Some financial sources estimate that banks lost an aggregate $115 million on their credit card operations in 1970 and that they are likely to go even deeper into the red this year.

Difficulty in generating a profit from the proliferating card business is attributed to customer fraud, theft, default on account payments, mismanagement, collusion by merchants and the high cost of processing records of transactions.

The American Bankers Association reports that 9,111 banks are involved in card operations, some on their own and many in association with others.

The number of merchants accepting bank cards is estimated by industry sources at 800,000.

Banks stepped into the credit card arena in 1951 on a local basis. In 1966 the operation became national when Bank of America of San Francisco began frachising its BankAmericard to other banks throughout the country.

Bank cards are used mainly for retail purchases while cards issued by American Express, Diner's Club and Carte Blanche are used primarily for travel and entertainment.

Master Charge, issued by an association of banks called Interbank, is the biggest bank card operation, with sales volume of $3.4 billion in 1970. BankAmericard was second with $2.7 billion.

Another big one is Unicard, issued by Chase Manhattan Bank of New York. Chase says it has two million card holders and 30,000 merchants in its system in nine states. Chase declined to disclose Unicard's dollar volume.

Associated Credit Bureaus, Inc., wpth headquarters in Houston, Tex., says in a report on bank credit cards that they should be "a made-to-order, punched-plastic key to the heavenly gates of financial growth and well-being."

"But," it adds, "there are rumblings of discontent in paradise."

The association says many banks are re-evaluating their position in the credit card business; some are dropping their programs and some are transferring them to other banks.

"On the merchant side of it, similar discontent has set in," the association says. "Many smaller retailers in particular are questioning the worth of bank card programs, feeling that the benefits to them are few, if any.

"During the recent period of inflation, increasing costs and smaller profit margins convinced many that the bank card-generated business did not justify the discount rates charged by the bank or the delayed retailer income inherent in the program.

BEDC Elects Officers

MALDEN — Three men were hired by the Botheel Economic Development Council and Regional Planning Commission and officers were elected during the monthly meeting in Malden Thursday night.

Moody Summitt, a former Cardwell man, was hired as a health planner with the commission. Tom Mason, Lilbourn, was employed as an accountant and Jay Wagner was hired as project director of the solid waste program.

Election of officers for the Economic Development Council was also held with Judge John Calvin, New Madrid, elected vice - chairman; R. J. Dirks, Malden, treasurer; and John Greer, Senath, secretary. Pat Lea, Sikeston, is the chairman.

Ron Yersak, planner in charge of the commission, explained to those at the meeting city sketch plans being developed for towns in the commission.

The plans include property within the city, houses, utilities and conditions of streets. The plans also rate the houses as either satisfactory, substandard or dilapidated. These plans are presented to cities that can pick out areas where the houses are 20 per cent dilapidated and seek a federal grant.

The commission also gave its approval for an application for a federal grant to help finance a nursing home to be located in Hayti under the Accelerated Public Works Program.

The Patrol said the adding machine was valued at $133.39 and the electric welder at $113.

Light Side Of Wage-Price Freeze

A look at the lighter side of the wage-price freeze reveals that everything from court costs to kids' allowances has been caught in the squeeze.

The Office of Emergency Preparedness ruled, for example, that the Municipal Court in Lincoln, Neb., has to refund part ofsthe court costs collected between Aug. 27 and Sept. 28.

It seems the court, in accordance with an authorization from the 1971 legislature, increased costs from $7 to $8. The OEP said the increase was in violation of the presidential freeze and ordered refunds. Court officials said about 2,500 persons were entitled to money back.

Another OEP ruling roled back the deposit for dormitory keys at Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y.

The fee was increased from $1 to $15 in an effort to provide greater security, but two students complained to the OEP and the school was ordered to refund the extra $14 to some 5,300 dormitory residents.

Twin sisters Linda and Lisa Byron of Loudonville, N.Y., didn't need an official ruling to decide to do their part for the economy. The 10-year-olds voluntarily turned down a 10-cent increase in their weekly 25-cent allowances.

The girls' mother wrote to the White House about the action and Linda and Lisa got a letter from President Nixon's daughter, Julie Eisenhower.

"My father shared your note with me and we were delighted to learn that the wage-price freeze is working in your home," the letter read in part.

Two cities got caught on thin ice in connection with the freeze.

The Concord, N.H., Youth Hockey Association was told it couldn't increase tuition from $40 to $50 a season as planned. Charles Blossom, president of the group, said that because of the OEP ruling, the group faces a $3,000 deficit since an increase in rental fees took effect before the freeze and still applies.

The City of New York faced problems in connection with its ice skating rinks. Back in July, the city published a notice that the fee at the rinks would be raised from 25 to 50 cents.

But, said a city spokesman, mere publication of the increase wasn't enough. Since nobody actually was charged the higher fee before the freeze went into effect Aug. 15 it had to be rolled back.

Still in dispute is a case involving the price of football tickets at the University of Southern California. USC raised prices for regular games from $6 to $6.50 and the school says that of 167,197 sold so far for the 1971 season, 152,627 were sold before the freeze began.

The OEP said USC had to refund the extra money and the school has filed suit in U.S. District Court, appealing the ruling and naming as defendants the Cost of Living Council and Ralph D. Burns, regional director of the OEP.

LARGER QUARTERS have been made available for the Britton Upholstery in Vanduser on Main street. The firm has taken over the Church of Christ building.

Britton Upholstery Expands

VANDUSER — Britton Upholstery, owned by Bob Britton, has come a long way.

He opened his business in the basement of his home, where he operated for a year. His business kept increasing.

He then moved in the old post office building but soon outgrew it.

Britton saw an opportunity when the Church of Christ built a new structure. He decided to take over the old church.

His new quarters needed little remodeling other than painting and clearing the floor for work space. He has 7,300 square feet of space.

He employed Bill Partin, formerly with Harry Buckles upholstery in Sikeston, with nine years experience.

The firm handles all types of furniture and truck seat upholstering.

Is now the time to buy land?

Acquiring that new farm without delay might seem more practical if you considered the benefits of financing through the Federal Land Bank. Today's expensive land is easier to pay for when its cost is amortized over extra years with a long-term Land Bank Loan. Your total cost of borrowing, too, can be less with a Land Bank loan.

As your local Land Bank Association, we offer a complete loan service: We know current land values; we will inspect the property being considered. We will examine your overall plans and resources, and make an income projection. We will then make a loan recommendation that fits your needs precisely and, whenever possible, provide the capital it takes to meet your goals.

Central Disposal Sites
Solid Waste Solution

KENNETT — No one is more interested or involved in the increasing problem of solid waste disposal in the six - county area of the Bootheel than the members of the Bootheel Economic Development Council and Regional Planning Commission in Malden.

The commission is working toward developing a Regional Solid Waste Management Plan to analyze the problems of waste disposal management.

Legislation has been passed stating that cities must come up with a solid waste disposal plan other than open burning by 1974 and must halt open burning by 1975.

Several laws have been introduced in the Missouri legislature but none covering solid waste disposal have yet been passed.

Phillip Shelton, executive director of the BEDC, said the federal law on pollution isn't what prompted the council to begin a study on solid waste.

"We felt the Bootheel had the need for a better solid waste disposal operation as opposed to open burning," Shelton said. "We were able to get a grant from the federal government, with one-fourth of the money coming from the area, to study the problem," he said.

Basically, the study will focus on four main points of solid waste in the six - county area. The main point in the study is finding a suitable way of collecting the tons of garbage from individual sites. Then comes the problem of where to store the garbage before it is picked up to be taken to the disposal site. These areas would be called sub - collection points. Thirdly, the study would offer the most effective means of disposing of the garbage, either by incineration or land fills or a combination of both. The fourth area of the study would be the feasibility of recycling the waste material.

"I think this solid waste plan will have far - reaching effects, within the next 10 years, perhaps," Shelton said.

Ron Yersak, who is working on the study, said New Madrid county has begun working on a landfill operation with assistance from the council.

Steele, Caruthersville and Hayti are now in the process of selecting a site for a landfill to be used by all three cities that will meet state requirements.

Shelton said a regional solid waste disposal plan would work best in the Bootheel due to the high cost of the equipment used in the landfill andthe cost of transporting the garbage to the landfill.

"A small town couldn't afford the expense going it alone," said Jay Wagner, who is also working on the study.

He continued, "Cities can join together, through the commission and get the solid waste plan costs reduced. We are able to incorporate several plans, using data from one study to fill in on another one and save money. Thus, the 55 cities in the six - county Bootheel commission can unite and fight the problem together."

Wagner said the solid waste disposal problem has been with us for some time. Pre -historic man even collected his garbage and piled it all in one spot. Even he didn't know what to do with it.

The study being conducted by the commission will be completed in December, 1972. It will take into consideration the volume of garbage present and forecast the amount for future years. A geological study will also show the most suitable site for the landfill, if that is the type of system proposed.

The study will also show what method of financing the system would require and what system to be used.

Shelton said he hopes to have a plan where the people will select the final plan after the study is drawn up.

If a landfill is chosen as the means of disposing of the waste, the land is not wasted. After a hole has been filled with the garbage and covered with a specified layer of dirt, it can be used for several things, such as city parks or recreation areas, or in some instances, a parking lot.

Wagner said the Bootheel area has a high water table and finding suitable sites for the landfills may present some problems because the trench cannot be dug through water. He also noted that most of the soil in this part of the county is sandy, and the preferable soil is clay.

He said the geological study would show what areas are best suited for the landfills. He said that once the land has been used as a landfill, it is recorded in the county courts.

Shelton said that in a properly operated and maintained landfill, insects and rodents are not a problem. Six inches of dirt covers the garbage and prevents the emergence of houseflies.

The Missouri Department of Health estimates there are 200 promiscuous dumps in the bootheel, Shelton said. These dumps contribute to air, water and land pollution. The "city dump" is a breeding ground of disease - carrying rodents and insects.

The growth in population and economy naturally yeilds an increase in the total amount of solid waste each year.

A Missouri Division of Health survey indicated that Missouri residents are generating approximately 4.2 million tons of solid waste per year, not including uncollected agricultural and mining wastes, or an average of 4.9 pounds per person per day.

A solid waste technical advisory committee, composed of interested citizens, work with the commission.

With the growing amount of solid waste being generated, Wagner said that people will eventually come up with a recycling system, but until then the sanitary landfill is the best system for the Bootheel.

What's The Law

Football Is Rough Game

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

The way McGirk could go around his own end, he could have been a contoriionist instead of a football player. His anticipation of having a great season as a quarterback came to an abrupt end during the first game when an opposing player zoomed down on him like a dreadnought.

With several ribs sunken, he had to be put away in a plaster cast for the remainder of the season. Determined to have the opposing player put away also, McGirk had him charged with criminal assault and battery.

"When that guy clobbered me," McGirk told the judge, "he did it with every intention of knocking me out of the game. He didn't just hit me, he attacked me. The fact is, he couldn't play clean if he was on the scrub team."

"Football's a rough sport that involves physical contact," was the defense. "And, when you tackle a man, he's supposed to stay tackled. If McGirk couldn't take it, he should have tried out for a potsy team."

IN YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict the opposing player of assault and battery?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that a football player can be found guilty of assault and battery where his conduct is proven to be reckless and indifferent to the safety of other players. But, concluded the judge, there was insufficient proff in this case that McGirk was the victim of such reckless or indifferent conduct. (Based upon a 1949 Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court Decision).

Prisoners Given Drugs

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A drug powerful enough to lull some inmates for as long as two weeks is being used at the Missouri Penitentiary to quell violent outbursts, an attorney for inmates charged Sunday.

Gerald R. Walsh of the Legal Aid & Defender Society of Kansas City said doctors at the prison "shoot up" inmates with the drug Prolixin after making clinical judgments they are phychotic.

The drug has been used on some inmates regularly for as long as two years, Walsh said, because when "he comes down, he might revert to antisocial behavior.

"What we see here is a chemical solution to a behavior problem; it is not directed at helping the man, at helping him change."

Walsh spoke at All Souls Unitarian Church in the final segment of a four-part series on the criminal correction system.

Dr. Leo Baker, chief medical officer at the penitentiary in Jefferson City, said Sunday night Prolixin is administered to 30 or 40 inmates at the prison.

"It's considered a mild tranquilizer," Baker said. "It does have side effects, much like other drugs have."

Baker disagreed with a conclusion by Walsh that the drug acts as a "functional lobotomy," a reaction as effective as severing nerve fibers in the brain.

Muscle stiffness is a common reaction, Baker said, but medication is administered to counteract this.

"There's no experimentation involved," he said. "It's used in large amounts in mental hospitals. I use a very small amount."

He said the drug is used on inmates who are normally in trouble.

"Now they are quiet and they work. They are much better, more manageable inmates. They're happier."

A pharmacist described Prolixin as a phenothiazine tranquilizer closely related to, but somewhat stronger than the more common Thorazine, a strong sedative. The pharmacist doubted the accuracy of Walsh's description — "functional lobotomy" — saying the claims of Prolixin's great potency had not been adequately demonstrated.

Missouri Heeds Road Building Signal

JEFFERSON CITY — Missouri is making every effort to take full advantage of the green light -- perhaps temporary -- on highway construction given by Federal officials.

Director of Highways Thomas A. David said the department was processing projects through to the division Federal Highway Administration office "as quickly as possible."

Decisions on the projects submitted are being made daily on a first - come first - served basis in Washington, D.C., he said.

Recent department bid lettings have averaged about $11 million monthly. Chief Engineer Robert N. Hunter said the November and January lettings could total about $60 million "if all projects we plan to submit are approved by the Federal Highway Administration."

The Missouri move followed a three - pronged announcement by Transportation Secretary John Volpe: In effect, Volpe said:

1. President Nixon has approved a $400 million increase in fiscal year 1972 highway allocations. This would change the fiscal year budget ceiling from the $4.6 billion announced previously to a new ceiling of $5.0 billion. Volpe said the $400 million, augmented by $273 million carried over from the allocation for the July - September quarter, would enable states to channel funds quickly into highway safety projects.

2. The regular $1.145 billion allocation for the October - December quarter will not be allocated on a state - by -state basis, as is the normal procedure, but is available on a first - come -first - served basis. In other words, the "frozen" apportionments are thawed -- until and unless the quarterly allocation is exhausted.

3. The fiscal year 1973 apportionment will be made shortly, thus making it possible to release funds to any state which exhausts its fiscal year 1972 apportionment.

Hunter said that Missouri was fortunate in having projects ready to move now. But, he said, the federal "on-again, off-again" policy makes long range planning by the states "extremely difficult."

David said he hoped the federal release of held -back funds indicated that federal officials realized the importance of keeping a "high level" of highway activity.

Exhibit Will Mark Anniversary

The Southeast Missouri chapter of the Telephone Pioneers of America will celebrate the 60th anniversary of the organization Thursday by setting up a mobile exhibit of their contribution to community service at Kingsway Plaza Mall Wednesday.

The exhibit will be in a converted school bus.

The theme of the 60th anniversary celebration is "Sixty Years of Human Service."

The organization has 350,000 members in the United States and Canada, and is the world's largest voluntary association of industrial employes.

Members are active and retired telephone company employes with 21 or more years of service.

Although they originally organized largely as a social organization, Pioneers today are active in community service projects of almost every description.

Nationally, the Pioneers continue a long association with the Library of Congress and its talking book program, and are involved in projects that bring hope and aid to the disadvantaged, handicapped, retarded and aged.

Most dramatic, perhaps, are the talking doll and animal projects which originated in Reading, Pa. Working with nearby schools for the retarded, Pioneers devised a walkie - talkie system that teachers can use to talk through a doll or stuffed animal with children who are otherwise almost impossible to reach.

Another Pioneer innovation is the audio ball, a beeping softball that blind children can learn to throw, chase, catch and even hit. Invented in Denver, audio balls are now in use in schools for the blind all over the country.

Phantom Cannon Search To Resume Next Spring

CASSVILLE, Mo. (AP) — A search will be resumed next spring for a phantom Civil War cannon that has been an Ozark legend for nearly 100 years.

Three Cassville business men—Jay Hull, John Pottebaum and Don Brock—went after the cannon in earnest early this year, using a bulldozer and power shovel on weekends to move tons of earth and rubble rock.

Generations of residents in the Cassville area have passed along the story that the brassbarreled cannon was pushed into a 20-foot deep swimming hole in Flat Creek by either Union or Confederate troops fleeing their enemy between 1861 and 1864.

A wheel of the gun carriage was smashed on a rock, the story goes, and the gun crew dumped the weapon into the creek to conceal it from the foe.

Both sides were using the old Wire Road, then the only route between Springfield, Mo., and Fort Smith, Ark.

An oldtimer, Dave Ware, owns the land where the digging is proceeding. He can show you where the Wire Road crossed his land before it was abandoned in 1918 in favor of the straighter Barry County Route Y.

Flat Creek changed its course in a 1940 flood and the storytellers believe the cannon was buried in the old channel.

The search crew used core drilling equipment to trace the old channel. Then heavy earthmoving machinery dug a swath 100 feet long, 50 feet wide and 20 feet deep.

The only things found were some pumps and other old equipment which apparently had been used long ago by others seeking the cannon.

Hull said he believes they have found the old swimming hole, but because of uncertain Ozark winter weather, the work will be abandoned until spring.
